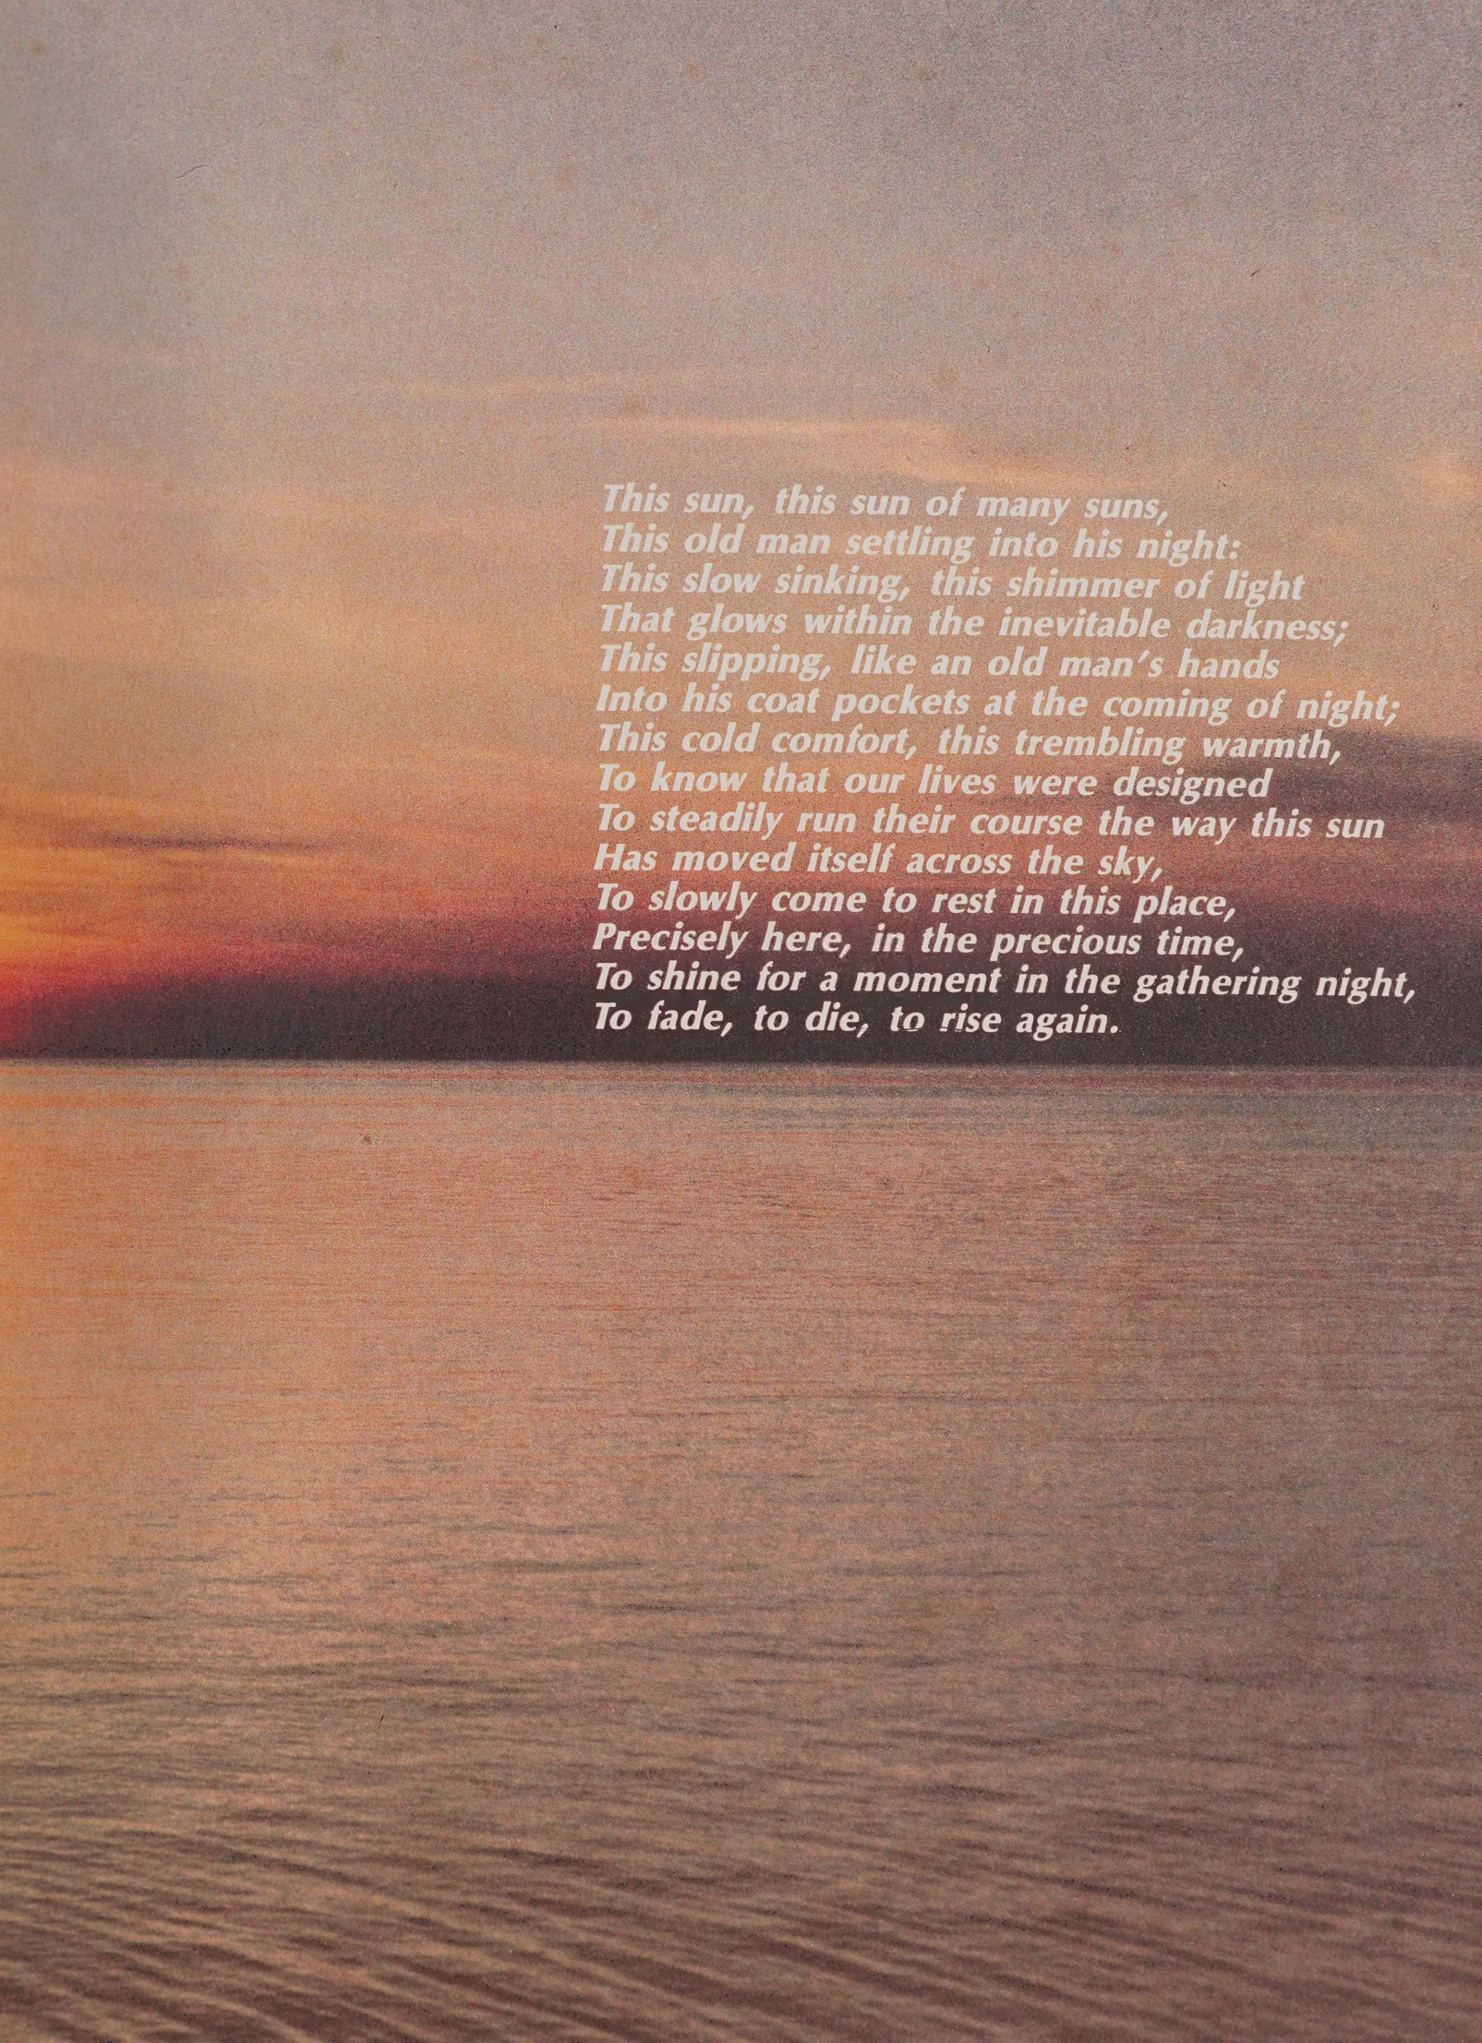
RALPH A. METCALF



This sun, this sun of many suns,
This old man settling into his night:
This slow sinking, this shimmer of light
That glows within the inevitable darkness;
This slipping, like an old man's hands
Into his coat pockets at the coming of night;
This cold comfort, this trembling warmth,
To know that our lives were designed
To steadily run their course the way this sun
Has moved itself across the sky,
To slowly come to rest in this place,
Precisely here, in the precious time,
To shine for a moment in the gathering night,
To fade, to die, to rise again.

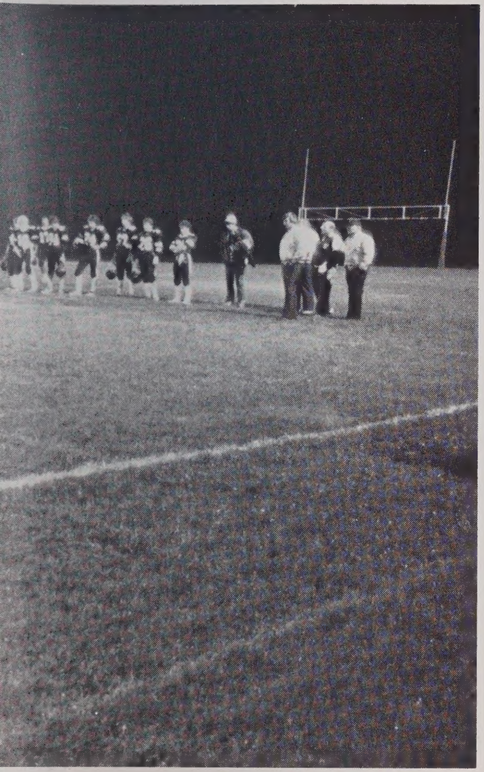
For every end, there is a beginning



Our theme, "For every end there is a beginning," like the cyclical pattern of sunrises and sunsets, depicts the four years the Class of 1986 has spent at Shrewsbury High School. As a class, we have experienced the same pattern.

THE CLASS OF '86 HAS SEEN MANY CHANGES IN FOUR YEARS

Beginnings

The Class of 1986, the first class to have four female advisors for all four years.

The first class to adopt and develop a logo and keep it throughout their high school years.

The first class to show spirit in all their endeavors, through yearly successful fundraisers and annual class trips.

The first class since 1970 to use the class colors on the cover of the yearbook.

One of the classes to usher in the new computer program, bringing computers to all areas of education.

One of the classes to benefit heavily from the advancements of the relatively new Educational Television Studio.

One of the classes to see the evolution of a girls' soccer team from an idea to a reality.

The first senior class to ever see football games played under the lights at Berstrom Field.

The first senior class to have a homecoming, including a parade, a football game, and a successful dance.

One of the classes to frequent the new businesses in town, the AM/PM and the Ground Round.

Endings

The school has seen the end of a dirty building and grey lockers.

The first senior class to see the end of a losing football team.

The last "real" freshman class because the eighth graders came into the building the next year, making them the youngest in school.

The last freshman class to spend their days in the 200 corridor.

The last of the small classes.

The last senior class to leave school early, compared to the rest of the school.

Finally, the biggest ending of all, the last days of high school, soon to be followed by college, a job, or the military.

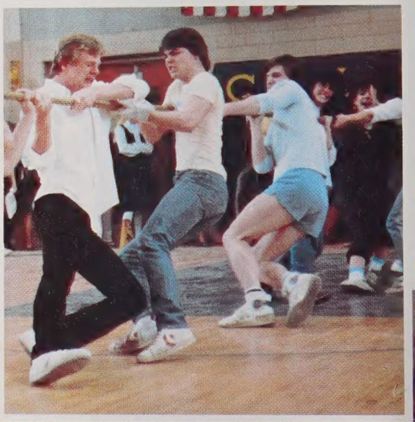
PARTICIPATION AND ENTHUSIASM ARE ON THE UPSWING AT SHREWSBURY



Spirit(n) — enthusiasm and loyalty, ie. school spirit.

In the past few years, there has been a significant increase in the amount of school spirit exhibited by Shrewsbury High School students. This increase is apparent in the higher percentage of students who participate in pep rallies and dress for Blue and Gold Days. Individual classes have also benefitted from the increased spirit as more people turn out to help with class activities such as fundraisers, proms, and other spirit related events like making posters.

The main vehicle behind the build-up of spirit is the Spirit Committee, which is responsible for organizing pep rallies, annual school dances, and Spirit Week. Spirit Week allows students from each class to show their spirit by competing with other classes in bizarre sports events, cheering battles, and a poster contest. Classes also battle it out in the week-long dress day competition that typically includes Clash Day or Hat Day, and the traditional Blue and Gold Day.

Beyond obvious spirit-related activities, there are many ways in which students can further exhibit school spirit. By participating in sports, musical groups, or other extracurricular activities, students represent SHS to both the community and other schools. Even those students who do not participate in any activities can show their spirit and enthusiasm by attending sports games, school shows, and concerts.

Lest we lose sight of the fact among the endless activities and involvements, let us state that Shrewsbury High School exists in order for students to learn. Because of the availability of many diverse facilities, students here are able to do so, to any extent they may desire. These facilities include teachers, books of all varieties, audio/visual aids, and computers. Anyone who attends the high school can find something of interest.

Students are required to take five major courses plus physical education. Each course completed is worth 2.50 credits; one hundred credits must be accumulated in order to graduate. The elective courses that may be selected are numerous, and include music, art, home economics, foreign languages, computers, journalism, and television production.

Mrs. Bannon receives Dedication

THE CLASS OF '86 EXPRESSES GRATITUDE TO AN ADVISOR

Throughout our four special years at Shrewsbury High School, the Class of 1986 has been privileged to have as a teacher and as an advisor Mrs. Barbara Bannon, who has touched the hearts of all of us in many ways.

Always ready to help, Mrs. Bannon has seen us through our tribulations with proms, fundraisers, plays, pep rallies, and spirit week, oftentimes outshining us with her class spirit. Her devotion to our mascot, the Dragon, has established the Class of 1986 as the first class to have adopted a logo.

We dedicate this yearbook to our advisor, teacher, and friend, Mrs. Barbara Bannon, as our small way of saying "thank you" for four unforgettable years.

SIX SENIORS TOUR EUROPE FOR THE SUMMER

That Continental Flair

Jeff Lewis, a senior on the varsity hockey team, was privileged to have the experience of visiting Italy, Austria, and Switzerland for ten days during April vacation last year. He travelled with Team USA Hockey, which accumulated a 4-2 record playing teams from these European countries. Most of the team members were from central New England, and all were in high school. During the two weeks of practices and games before their departure, the team members were evaluated to determine who the starters would be during the tour. Most of the participants had been previously involved in a hockey summer league, and had heard of the trip through this activity.

During the time between games, the teams met in bars, although not to drink alcohol; soda was the drink of choice. Jeff enjoyed sightseeing but what he liked most about the trip was the new sense of freedom and responsiblity he felt.

Throughout the regular girls' soccer season, coaches pick one outstanding player from each game. At the end of the season, the votes are tallied, and the top eleven vote-getters are named to the all-state soccer team. All of the state finalists then have a chance to travel to Europe for twenty days during the summer as members of the American Soccer Ambassadors. Kristin Finnerty, a senior who began playing the sport only four years ago, qualified last year, and took advantage of the opportunity. She was sponsored by various Shrewsbury businesses and the Rotary Club. The sixty Ambassadors from various states played teams in five countries — England, Belgium, Holland, West Germany, and France, and finished with a 2-6-1 record. Beyond playing soccer, Kristin had a great time in Europe. Part of the fun included dancing, going to the beach and picnics with the host families, and learning the different countries' traditions. Her only comment on their lifestyles was that "People were too easygoing and slow; time was no element."

Melissa and Michelle Purretta, senior twins, went to France this past summer to visit relatives. During their six week stay, they travelled to Paris and the Riviera. The Purrettas found that it was "fun to try different stuff"; some foods they sampled include rabbit, frog legs, and pigs' head cheese.

From their travels, they found the French to be more fashionable than Americans. People were also extremely friendly. In a suburb of Paris, an entire cafe full of people stood to see the two Americans at the door. Because of the wonderful time they had this summer, the Purrettas plan to return to France for more visits in the future.

When Jose Abeleira left Shrewsbury last spring to return to his home in Madrid, Spain, he invited Michelle Keenan and Christine Saunders to visit him during the summer. He had spent a year here as a foreign exchange student, and had formed close ties with many students at the high school. In August, the girls took him up on his offer, spending sixteen days with the Abeleira family at their home in Madrid, and at their summer home in Torremolinos.
They occupied themselves with sightseeing, sunning on the beach, and sampling the Madrid nightlife. The social hour there begins at 11:30 PM, and Michelle and Chris rarely returned home before 3:00 AM. Some of their fondest memories include a miniature golf match at 2:00 AM and singing Christmas songs through the streets of Madrid at daybreak. When it was time to leave for the states, they were stopped in Madrid customs. Their passports were seized; twenty-two hours later their plane finally lifted off for Boston, much to their relief.

FOUR SHREWSBURY SENIORS SPEND SIX WEEKS OF THE SUMMER ATTENDING MASP '85

Go to school for six weeks in the summer? Most people would not even consider it, but that is exactly what four SHS students did last summer. Giving up summer relaxation and trips to the beach, these students attended the fifth annual Massachusetts Advanced Studies Program held at Milton Academy. However, strangely enough, Paula Ferguson, Tanya Lane, Eileen Ormond, and Gary Wu had no misgivings about their lost summers.

The basic purpose of the program was to prepare the 200 participants for the pace and pressures of college life. This objective was easily accomplished, with four hours of classes six days a week plus an equal, if not greater, amount of homework. Bleak as it may sound, the daily schedule also included time for sports, musical activities and socializing.

The social aspect of M.A.S.P. ranked as one of its prime assets. Not a week went by that did not include at least one party, dance, or other social event. Dorm life also provided a chance to make new friends and a continual source of entertainment and fun. Being on the outskirts of Boston, common diversions included trips to Quincy Market, Harvard Square, and Steve's Ice Cream. The proximity of Boston also allowed for class field trips to many of the city's attractions plus a trip by the entire student body to the Esplanade on the Fourth of July to hear the Boston Pops and see the fireworks.

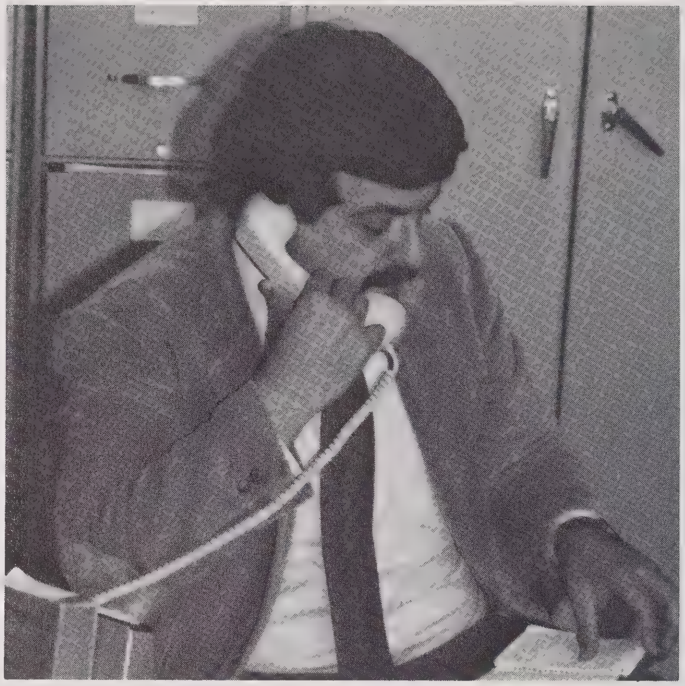
As the program brochure stated, it was a "Summer for your future" as well as a summer for fun. As one attending student said, "It was the best six weeks of my life."

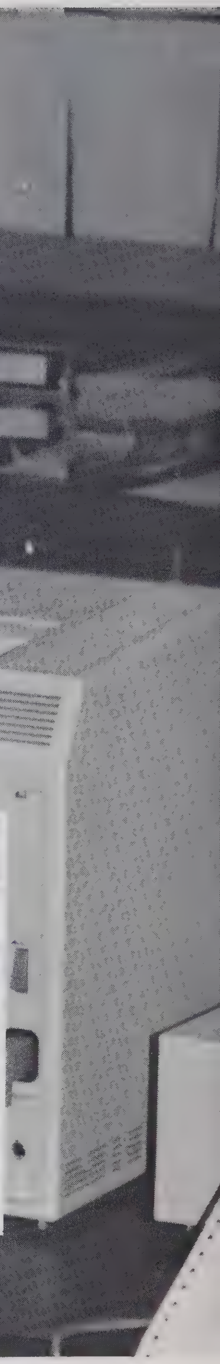
Basic, Logo, Binary, Pascal, Appleworks, MacIntosh, Apples — are these terms foreign to anyone? Very unlikely. For now all students are exposed to The World of Computers.

Over the past few years, computers have become an integral part of the curriculum at SHS, mostly due to the diligence of computer co-ordinator Thomas Plati. The current computer program is divided into two strands, computer studies and computers in academics. Computer studies includes all the semester and full-year computer courses while the other strand involves the projects that link computers with other disciplines, such as English and civics.

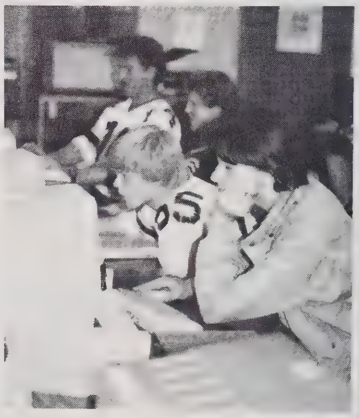
The basic objective of the entire computer curriculum, according to Mr. Plati, is to "Have the computer used naturally as a tool in all academic areas." One future program, which is being tested this year, involves English classes using the computer as a tool in writing labs. This project is receiving positive responses from both faculty and students. As junior Marc Keddy said about computers and the writing lab, "Awesome."

Apple Computers has honored the Shrewsbury computer department this year by awarding it the first grant from the company's newly formed special education branch.





APPLE COMPUTER GRANT TO AID IN SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAM



Computers take over

The grant includes 44 computers plus accessories, worth over $97,000. The computer equipment is to be used as a learning tool for special education both in school and at home.

Now that The World of Computers is spreading to all areas of education, computers could easily become the Basic language of the school. Let us hope not!

WEEKLY BROADCASTS INCREASE THE VISIBILITY OF SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY EVENTS

ETS comes into its own

A beginning for Shrewsbury High School students and teachers this year was the establishment of a television studio with weekly broadcasts. Jeff Robbins, who conceived and developed this idea, is the producer of the educational studio which is located in the High School. Three weekly programs are broadcast over Shrewsbury Cablevision on Channel 57.

"Game of the Week" was aired on Tuesday nights. Each game played by a Shrewsbury team was taped and produced for the show. Such games as girl's soccer, field hockey, and football were the first few. Even night games were taped. Interviews conducted by students were of athletes, coaches, and bystanders. If some one missed a certain game, they could still watch it on television; of course, the outcome would already be known.

"School and Community" was scheduled on Wednesday nights. This program brought major community interests and active groups into the homes of all but a quarter of the town's residents. PARENT PERSPECTIVES covered ideas and opinions of parents' attitudes toward current school and community issues.

There were many segments of the Wednesday night show including ON THE STREET in which students interviewed community members for their beliefs and interest of local happenings. Dates and times of weekly community activities were gathered by members of the program's crew to form an informative calendar. Many people in the community were interested in this program because it let them view their own town through the eyes of others.

"School Specials" ran on Monday nights. This was an informative program of various educational activities and interest. Teachers, administrators, and students were interviewed by crew members to let the community see who is in the schools and how they interact. A COMMUNICATIONS segment brought the community an in depth look at the production and photography of gymcraftics. HUMANITIES FORUM was made of participating students from any grade. These "whiz" kids showed their thinking skills, awareness, and interest in current international and national issues by expressing their opinions through group discussion.

The T.V. Studio has had a fine beginning this year and will surely grow and develop in the coming years.

Camaros, 280 ZX's, Corvettes — where would you find these cars? On a car dealer's showroom floor but not in the high school parking lot, right? Wrong.

Walking through the student parking lot, you will see a good number of expensive sports cars filling the numbered spaces. Students have become more concerned with their appearances in the past few years and now this concern seems to have spread to the appearances of their cars as well. This pattern involves having a showy car and keeping it looking nice. One car owner, senior Becky Mattress, washes her car every weekend, becoming flustered if it gets mud-spattered.

Even with the increased number of sports cars in the parking lot, they are still a minority. Most students drive typical American cars, passed down to them from their parents. However, the array of cars in the parking lot runs the gamut from the sports car down to the piece of junk. Some students simply own a car that runs and has a loud stereo, nothing more. Fitting the description of "being able to get from point A to point B," these cars can be spotted by their rust-rotted panels, cracked windshields, and dented doors.

Dilapidated station wagons and ancient four-door sedans — only found at a local junk yard, right? Wrong again. These too can be found in the high school parking lot.

Where the elite meet to eat

IN THE CAFETERIA, SOCIALIZING IS ALMOST AS IMPORTANT AS EATING

Rrrrringgg.

Students swarm the halls, all hurrying toward the cafeteria eager to set to lunch. But why? It is a well-known fact that school lunch is one of the ten greatest health hazards in the nation. When asked her first reaction to the word lunch, senior Kathy Martinelli responded, "Gross."

Obviously, there must be some other reason why students are so eager to set to lunch. A common response to the question "Why do you go to lunch?" is "Where else can I go?" There really are no rule-abiding alternatives during lunch period than to head to the cafeteria. Without the existence of other food sources, school lunch is the only option for hungry students, unless they bring their own. The one saving grace is that the cafeteria sells commercial products, like Suzy Q's and Devil Dogs, as well as the usual fare.

Breaking up the day, lunches provide a time to relax and release tension, making them somewhat popular. When asked what she did during lunch, a junior girl replied "Talk to my friends and do homework." For many people, lunch may provide the one time that they see all of their friends making it the perfect social meeting place.

The crowd in the halls thins as the cafeteria fills. Lunches aren't likely to lose popularity soon, so if you want a seat, you better get there quick.

Tunnels of Traffic

HALLWAY CONGESTION BECOMES A FACT OF LIFE

One aspect of the school that every student experiences is the hallway. Whether empty or full, light or dark, the corridors are there - connecting rooms and leading from place to place.

Between classes, hallway congestion is a major problem. Students travel in every possible direction, stopping to chat, running, screaming, and even walking. Once the bell rings, summoning kids to their next class, the halls empty rapidly, leaving only a few wanderers.

In stark contrast to this chaos is the corridors' appearance after two o'clock. Custodians appear to sweep and wax the floors, and sports teams cluster in small groups in the gym area. Teachers can be seen giving students extra help individually or collectively, and various meetings convene in the media center, art rooms, yearbook office, and class advisers' rooms.

When the three o'clock bus departs, the corridors quiet down, at least until evening when they again see the action of Adult Nite Life classes, rehearsals for plays, and yearbook deadlines.

AFTER FLEEING SOUTH VIETNAM TIEN THUY LY SETTLES IN SHREWSBURY

A new life

What are the odds of a foreign-born student arriving in the U.S., knowing no English, and learning the language so well that she ranks second in her class only six years later? Probably not very good, but Tien Thy Ly seems to consistently triumph against stiff odds. Born and raised in South Vietnam, Tien left her home in Saigon in 1978, at the age of ten. With her two sisters, her parents, and three uncles, Tien escaped the Communist-controlled country by boat, secretly at night. Knowing that they would be jailed if their departure were discovered, they left behind family members and almost all of their possessions. Since North Vietnam's takeover of the country, any opportunies that the family might have had had disappeared. Because Mr. Ly worked for the South Vietnamese government, he eventually would have been expelled, and there definitely would have been no college in his daughter's future.

Upon landing in Malaysia, they applied for immigration papers to enter the United States. When these papers were granted six months later, the Lys flew to Boston, settling in Worcester after a brief stay in New Hampshire. After attending North High for two years, Tien transferred to SHS when her parents bought a house in Shrewsbury.

As for the future, Tien will be attending college in the fall. Tufts is her first choice but she is doubtful of her chances of acceptance there. Considering her outstanding grades and impressive SAT scores, it seems likely that her worries are unfounded and that she will accomplish what she wishes to in life.

A unique opportunity

MR. LOUIS VELLA FEELS "LUCKY" TO HAVE HAD HIS CHILDREN IN CLASS

Mr. Louis Vella, the director of the music program at SHS, has been a teacher here for thirty years. Because his five children are involved in music, he has had the unique opportunity to instruct them. Two have already graduated; one, Matthew, is presently a freshman.

The entire Vella family participates in musical activities, and the kids spend many extra hours at home helping with organizing and filing music. Mr. Vella does not force music on his children; they seem to have a natural interest in it. Matthew is, admits his father, "a pretty good trumpet player, too."

Mr. Vella feels it is not difficult for him to have his children as students, as they keep their "school" and "personal" lives separate. He realizes, however, that it can be embarrassing at times for the kids.

Two more Vellas should be coming into the music program in the future - a French horn player in the seventh grade, Christopher, and a sixth grade clarinetist, Patricia.

Vandersea legend lives

SCOTT VANDERSEA FOLLOWS IN HIS FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS, UPHOLDING THE FAMILY TRADITION

Football ability runs in the Vandersea family. Scott is the senior co-captain of the varsity football team; his father Philip played professionally from 1966 to 1971. He went to the Superbowl in 1966 with the Green Bay Packers, and later played for the New Orleans Saints. Mr. Vandersea was an offensive lineman as well as on the kick-off unit while Scott is an offensive tackle and defensive end.

According to Scott, he was influenced by his father's interest in the sport early on. When he was younger, father and son sometimes tossed a football around. As Scott grew up, football became a natural element of his life. Because of this interest, he moved right into the high school program in his freshamn year, progressing to the important position he holds today.

Success in the Arts

JOANNE MEYER SPENDS A SUMMER AT TANGLEWOOD

Every year, flutists from all over the country compete for the chance to attend the flute seminar at the Tanglewood Institute, sponsored by Boston University. Through applications and auditions at BU, fifteen flutists are chosen to spend one month in Lenox, MA learning from the pricipal flutists of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Last summer, senior Joanne Meyer was one of those chosen.

Each day, the students played in class, then heard critiques of their performances and learned how to improve them. Four hours of practice followed ensemble classes. At night, they were able to attend Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts.

Joanne learned about the Institute through her music teacher, who encouraged her to apply. Following her March audition, she learned that she had not only been accepted, but that she would also be offered a partial scholarship from BU. The Shrewsbury Music Association also paid part of the fee. Next year, Joanne hopes to return to Tanglewood to participate in the youth orchestra, and plans to enter a music school in the fall. She feels that she gained much from her experience at the seminar; indeed, it was for her "the summer of a lifetime."

ADAM EDWARDS BUILDS A CAREER

Adam Edwards, a member of the class of 1986, has had starring roles in the Shrewsbury High Productions of The Bad Seed and Annie Get Your Gun. During the summer of 1985 he took part in a very interesting learning experience. Adam had been reading different magazines dealing with arts and theater directories. Noticing a reappearing article/ad for the National Shakespeare Conservatory in New York, for undergraduates and postgraduates in theater major, he wrote for additional information. He was sent information about the regular two-year school and the eight-week summer program.

Being skilled at drama, he was accepted to the summer program after auditioning in Boston, late in March. Adam was the youngest member of the group; the others' ages ranged from twenty to sixty years. This group was located in upstate New York.

At first the group of forty people worked on their audition pieces, picked out from American Standard form for drama. One classical and one contemporary work was selected to illustrate the true Greek drama. Adam chose a monologue from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and one from a play called "The Runaways." The students' work on these pieces gave the instructors insight into the students' abilities.

The classroom work was intense and long. Adam said that classes ran from seven in the morning until ten at night, with breaks to eat. There were classes and instruction on just about everything pertaining to theater such as dance, movement, voice, speech, play analysis, acting, and studies in the style of Shakespeare.

Adam felt that this was a wonderful experience, and that it will be very helpful for his future. He has already been accepted to the National Shakespeare Conservatory in New York City. Adam is also considering the Julliard Academy which is also in New York City and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art which is in London, England.

This is an outstanding accomplishment for a person, especially at this time in life.

AFTER BEING RULED FOR THREE YEARS, IT'S GREAT TO BE

Seniors

Knowing it is the last year of high school, seniors always seem to make the best of it. There is an exciting feeling of power in the realization that a few more months will bring the freedom to do whatever they wish. The future is theirs.

Graduation means no more classes here, no more homework from here, and no more worrying about being here at 7:50 AM. However, it also means seeing less of all the friends made during high school. On the left two good friends, Maria Taylor and Michelle Garand, are decorating the gym for the Junior prom. Michelle happily models her new outfit for the night.

HATS OFF TO THE CLASS WITH CLASS

Throughout our four years in high school, the Class of 1986 was uniquely fortunate in having four dynamic female advisors. Their infinite devotion helped make this class the best it could possibly be.

Mrs. Barbara Bannon was a faithful advisor as she has maintained the spirit of the class through her dragons and confetti.

The finances were carefully handled by Miss Roberta Dolan. She responsibly kept records as well as gifted us with her charming sense of humor.

Life size dragons, two-story tall buildings, and crepe papered walls were taken care of by Mrs. Patricia Poole. She gave one hundred percent of her talent to keep the Class of 1986's "Spirit" alive.

Miss Patricia Galipeau handled ticket sales for our Junior Class Play and Junior Prom and was always with us to cheer on our endeavors.

These four advisors are appreciated by the entire class because they gave us their full attention, no matter how busy they were with school or family commitments. They gave their exuberance, and most of all their love to the entire class.

The Class of 1986 takes this opportunity to say an enormous "THANKS" and "Hats off to you four."

MURDER ON STAGE!!

Murders haunt the halls of SHS as the Class of 86 presents "The Bad Seed"

In the fall of 1984, the junior class presented its version of Maxwell Anderson's the Bad Seed as a fundraiser. Guided by the multi-talented Jack Feldheimer, the cast rehearsed for two months in preparation for the three performances, December 7th, 8th, and 9th. As director, Mr. Feldheimer spent many afternoons a week giving instructions for blocking and scenery while he patiently waited for all lines to be memorized.

The rehearsals brought on a spirit of camaraderie between the players. Each day was filled with new suprises. Not one of the cast will forget the day Mary Smith learned to rollerskate, or the day Andrew Swinand learned to say "oil" without an accent. Everyone remembers the times Jan Skowronski said his six words as messenger, and Maria Taylor imitated a doorbell and telephone.

As the curtain opened on the first performance, all lights and eyes were finally on the stage. Lines had been memorized, the scenery was set, and Mr. Feldheimer had on his tuxedo. After the first lines were spoken, nerves and fear melted away and all three performances were a major success.

When the curtain dropped on the final performance, everyone was pleased with the performance, but sad to see the play end. The hard work, fun times, and afternoons together ended, but the memories of shared time together still linger in the minds of all the cast.

AMUSEMENTS AND BEACHES, FUN, FUN!

Between water slides and roller coasters, the Class of 1986 has enjoyed 2 great trips

Amusement parks, the beach, warm weather, food, and fun — all are part of an ideal class trip. If these criteria are used, the Class of 1986 is lucky to have enjoyed two perfect trips. One of the few classes to have a class trip their freshman year, the Class of '86 ventured to Rocky Point Amusement Park in Rhode Island for a day of fun. As the two bus loads of rowdy, anxious students arrived at the park, the sun came out, promising a hot day. Even though it was hot, everyone found a way to cool off, either by riding the giant Flume or taking a swim in the Olympic-size swimming pool. Regardless of the long lines, the day proved to be exciting and full of thrills.

Sophomore year, the Class of 1986 again travelled to an amusement park, this time to Paragon Park and Nantasket Beach on the South Shore. The class was one of the last groups to visit the park, as it was closed down soon after the trip. Having the choice of being by the shore, playing games, or riding rides allowed everyone to do as they pleased with their friends. Although it was again hot, it was easy to cool down by taking a quick swim in the icy Atlantic. As always, lines were long for the rides but well worth the wait, especially for the roller coaster, one of the largest in the area. After the day of fun and food, everyone was exhausted but happy.

THE FIRST RITUAL OF GRADUATION

Seniors are measured for caps and gowns

On January 8th, the senior class spent fourth period in the auditorium being measured for Caps and Gowns. With this first ritual of graduation came the realization that the Class of 1986 would indeed be leaving the school at the end of May.

Perhaps some seniors have wondered when and where the wearing of caps and gowns originated. The tradition of wearing gowns for academic ceremonies goes back to the Middle Ages when people of the upper class dressed up to demonstrate their social position.

Today there are many different degrees in college - bachelor's, master's, doctorate's - and along with these high schools have adopted the wearing of caps and gowns, usually in their school colors. White caps and gowns are even worn by children when they leave kindergarten. The square "Oxford Cap" is worn for most degrees, with the tassles of varying colors designating degrees.

At Shrewsbury High School's graduations, blue caps, with gold tassles, and gowns are worn each year as members of the senior class participate in their last ceremony as high school students.

ONE ENCHANTED EVENING

Dimmed lights, rose petals, stone walls set the stage for one enchanted evening

Girls in lace and ruffles, accompanied by their tuxedoed dates, arrived at the door. Crepe paper, a skyline, street signs, light-strewn trees, and over four hundred stars greeted their eyes and transformed the gymnasium into the center of New York City night life.

This was the scene on Saturday May 4, 1985 as the Class of 1986 held its Junior Prom. After months of planning and construction, coordinated by Mrs. Poole, everything came together on Friday, the decorating day. Everyone involved in that hectic day remembers the seemingly endless trips to Ziff Paper made by Lisa Kouvaros and Sandi Francis, and the ten trips to Spag's taken by Kirsten Losert and Nicky Bates. Even more memorable was a minor accident, when Scott Gauch sent Becky Mattress crashing through the art room showcase window.

Once this day finally ended, the advisors and organizers could relax and enjoy the event. The Marcels provided the music, including the theme song, "You're the Inspiration," by Chicago. They also determined the prom queen and her court. Carrie McGuire was chosen as queen, and Reta Chin, Korrine Davis, Elena Patronas, and Betty Garofoli comprised her court.

STUDENTS SPONSOR HALLOWEEN PARTY

Candy, costumes and games spell fun for area youngsters

At twelve noon on October 26, 1985, the last lingering Care Bears and Cabbage Patch Kids filed out of the cafeteria. For two hours, 350 costumed youngsters had shaved balloons, eaten doughnuts, and thrown wet sponges at the third annual SHS Halloween Party.

Members of the Student Council and National Honor Society, which sponsored the party, were responsible for organizing the party and decorating the cafeteria. Members set up and ran their own booths, ranging from a coloring booth to a fortune- telling stand. All members were also responsible for baking something to be sold at the party.

A costume contest for kindergarten through third graders was run by Andrew Swinand and Maria Taylor. All winners were awarded prizes. Some of the winning costumes included a Crayola crayon, a toy soldier, Raggedy Ann, and a ninja.

The Haunted House, run by Mr. Donald Pottle and Erin McCann, featured a two-room spread, full of scary monsters and other equally gruesome sights. As the visitors to the Haunted House exited, they could view themselves on a television set up by Mr. Pottle.

The basic purpose of the party was to provide a service to the community. The small amount of proceeds gained from the venture was donated to the Spirit Committee for future pep rallies.

I, Cheryl Wintermute, leave with a lot of memories.

I, Jim S. Zirulnik, leave my headaches to all the freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and anyone in between.

GETTING A HEAD START

Interviews, resumes, and job hunting are all part of Jobs for Bay State Graduates

In its third year of operation, the Jobs for Bay State Graduates program has helped many SHS students prepare for the working world after high school. Designed to help non-college bound seniors find and keep jobs, the program teaches students how to write a resume, fill out a job application, and prepare for an interview. Under the guidance of Mrs. Ann Porreca, the members meet twice a week, to learn these skills and also listen to guest speakers from local businesses.

On January 27, members of J.B.S.G. were installed into the Baystate Career Association during a candlelight ceremony, which symbolizes the new light in the students' futures. The officers, including President Justine Ellis, Secretary Rebecca Baker, Coordinator of Civic Affairs Aldo Nolle, Coordinator of Career Preparation Gina Lapriore, Coordinator of Social Affairs James Schiavone, and Coordinator of Leadership Kevin Coombs, were also inducted during the ceremony. Throughout the spring, members are involved in career days; they are allowed to explore possible careers by visiting various locations and observing for a day. In May, the students attend a State Conference and compete with students from throughout the state. Upon graduation, Mrs. Porreca takes charge of the job development service, which helps place many of the members in jobs. This service also follows each student for the next nine months. Although the jobs for Bay State Graduates Program is relatively new at the high school, it has already proven extremely valuable and is one of the most successful programs in the state.

SENIORS RECEIVE AWARDS

Special honors are announced

A major highlight of any school year is the announcement of special honors and awards to be received by students. Although awards are announced throughout the year, all recipients are acknowledged by Mr. Charles Ferris at the Academic Awards Ceremony held in late May.

Class of 1986 members earned their first awards in May 1985, when Paula Ferguson received the Harvard Book Award. At the same time, Rebecca Mattress was given the Brown Book Award for excellence in writing and Eileen Ormond was honored with the Holy Cross Book Award, given in the memory of Stacy Gallic.

In June, Eileen Ormond was announced as the SHS Girls' State Representative and Tom Peterson, Scott Gauch, and Butch Nadeau became Boys' State Reps. These students were recommended by the faculty for these positions, and they travelled to their separate government-related workshops.

In the fall of 1985, Mr. Ferris announced that Paula Ferguson was a semi-finalist in the 31st annual National Merit Program. John Burney, Mark Kirk, Tara McDonald, Tanya Lane, and Heather Fearn were named as Commended Students. Based upon the selection of the class, Lauren Renihan received the D.A.R. Good Citizenship and Jewish War Veterans Awards. In November, Paula Ferguson and Rebecca Mattress were selected to receive the Superintendent's Awards for Academic Excellence.

HISTORY TEACHES EVERYTHING, EVEN THE FUTURE

The Class of 1986 entered Shrewsbury High School in 1982, the same year that the AM/PM mini-market opened and Centrum construction was completed. The Dragon began a four-year reign, under the guidance of advisors Mrs. Bannon, Miss Dolan, Miss Galipeau, and Mrs. Poole. Eileen Ormond began her four years as treasurer, collecting dues and organizing a decal fundraiser. SHS became famous as Mr. Pottle was awarded Massachusetts Teacher of the Year and Evening Magazine visited the school. We showed our strength as we beat the seniors and sophomores, winning the Spirit Week tug-of-war. Late in the year, a number of students spent an unexpected afternoon in Boston, as they were left behind on a language field trip. As the year ended with a class trip to Rocky Point, so ended the long-running television sitcom M*A*S*H.

Returning as sophomores, we found the school invaded by 8th graders. Erin Collins and Kristin Senosk served their first of two years as president and secretary, respectively, while Sandi Francis served her second year as vice president. As Sally Ride soared into space, so did our fundraising efforts, with a towel sale engineered by Monica Staras. In November, the school "Celebrated" twenty five years of existence, with a Student/Faculty Variety Show. In the spring, we ordered our class rings as our parents ordered cable television, bringing movies and MTV into our homes. Members of the class travelled far - Laura Morse and Cheryl Wintermute to Spain, some to France, some to Washington D.C. with the band and orchestra; and Monica Staras and Paula Ferguson traveled to speech nationals in Cincinnati, Ohio. While "The Day After" warned us of the threat of nuclear war, we heeded the advice of Tom Cruise in "Risky Business" and enjoyed life, venturing to Paragon Park and Nantasket Beach for our second annual class trip. Dan Kelley even got "Money for Nothing," finding a $50 bill on the beach. Over the summer, "Gremlins" and "Ghostbusters" took America by storm and Prince showered the world with "Purple Rain," while we learned to drive. The United States dominated the Olympics in Los Angeles and Presidential candidates traversed the country, seeking votes. There was little contest for class offices; the only new officer was vice president Tom Peterson. Returning to school, we were greeted by many new faces, including foreign exchange student Jan Skowronski and new students Kim Cussimanio, Melissa Gorman, Chris Doherty and Andrew Swinand. President Reagan was re-elected and Roberta Goldman won a seat in the State House.

Tryouts were held for the Junior Class Play, and Mary Smith was chosen to play the lead in "The Bad Seed." Mary, as Rhoda Penmark, shocked her parents, Eileen Ormond and Scott Gauch, with her murder of a schoolmate. The first to perceive Rhoda's evil nature, Leroy, played by Adam Edwards, tormented the young girl, until he too was killed. The diverse cast of the play was held together by stage manager Maria Taylor. While we all sent money to the College Board in Princeton to pay for our SAT's, the world sent money to Africa, with the help of Band-Aid and USA for Africa, to aid the famine victims. In March, we mobilized for Spirit Week. Although the poster competition was fixed, we burned the competition with "The Heat is On," and won the cheering competition. We again ventured into show business in the spring, when we joined with the National Honor Society to sponsor a talent show. The night of the show, we all mourned the loss of Erin Collins, who was eaten by the land shark. Soon, preparations shifted into high gear for the Junior Prom, which was to be set in New York City on "One Enchanted Evening." While the gym was being transformed with the artistic assistance of Mrs. Poole and Lauren Renihan. Becky Mattress and Scott Gauch added their help, breaking the artroom showcase window. The night of the prom, we danced to the sounds of the Marcels and our prom song "You're the Inspiration." Carrie McGuire was crowned Queen, and her Court of Betty Garofoli, Korine Davis, Elena Patronas, and Reta Chin was chosen.

U2 returned to the Centrum, while "The Breakfast Club" taught us the value of Saturday detentions. On the night of the National Honor Society induction, class members received their share of honors and awards. Paula Ferguson received the Harvard Book Award, Becky Mattress the Brown Book Award, and Eileen Ormond the Holy Cross Book Award. Paula then left for Ft. Lauderdale, to attend the National Forensic League national tournament. Tom Peterson, Scott Gauch, and Butch Nadeau were Boys' State Representatives and Eileen Ormond attended Girls' State.

In the summer before our senior year, Americans clamored for the return of old Coke and Michael J. Fox took us "Back to the Future." With the high value of the dollar on the world market, Americans travelled everywhere, and Class of '86 members were not far behind. Jeff Lewis and Kristin Finnerty toured Europe, playing hockey and soccer respectively while Melissa and Michelle Purretta visited

France and Michelle Keenan and Chris Saunders journeyed to Spain. Adam Edwards attended a New York Drama Conservatory, Joanne Meyer went to the Tanglewood Institute, and Paula Ferguson, Tanya Lane, Eileen Ormond, and Gary Wu spent six weeks studying at the Massachusetts Advanced Studies Program. As the summer ended, "St. Elmo's Fire" showed us the future that lay ahead, while Nando made sure we all looked "Mahhhvelous" with our summer tans.

We stormed into our last year at the high school, soon to be followed by Hurricane Gloria, which closed school, and even forced Spag's to board its windows. Class President Lauren Renihan led the Class of '86 through a successful, although wet, first Homecoming parade and football game, as she was crowned Homecoming Queen and stood alongside King Jim Firmes. The National Honor Society, with President Andrew Swinand, teamed up with the Student Council to provide another fun Halloween party for the young children of Shrewsbury. Senior members of the Student Council were Maria Taylor, Andrew Swinand, Joanne Meyer, Scott Gauch, Sheila Ennis, and President Lisa Pescaro. The Educational Television Studio went on the air just in time for students to discuss important issues such as AIDS and South African apartheid. Soon National Merit announced its Semifinalist, Paula Ferguson, and Commended Students, Tara McDonald, Heather Fearn, Mark Kirk, John Burney, and Tanya Lane. As seniors met with their guidance counselors to plan for the future, President Reagan and Soviet Leader Gorbachev met with their advisors to plan for the impending summit in Geneva. Doug Flutie visited SHS late in the fall at the request of Students Against Driving Drunk. Flutie spoke at two assemblies, persuading students not to drink and drive. By the time Flutie visited, it was clear that the varsity football team was going to have a winning season. With captains Mark Parker and Scott Vandersea, the team posted an outstanding record of 7-2-1. Possibly inspired by the performance of the Colonials, the New England Patriots had a remarkable season, making it to the playoffs and finally winning the AFC Championship. In December, we decorated the gym with a Christmas tree and a sleigh full of presents, and held a Christmas Dance, hoping to boost the holiday spirit throughout the school. Some students received early Christmas presents as they were accepted early decision to colleges. Kirstin Losert was accepted into Tufts, Tom Peterson received an Air Force ROTC scholarship, and Paula Ferguson was accepted into MIT and received an Air Force ROTC scholarship. Upon returning from Christmas vacation, preparations began for the musical, "Hello, Dolly!" with senior Melissa Blanchard starring as Dolly. Soon, mid-term exams descended upon the school, signifying the end of the semester. After late-night cramming and last minute studying, this ordeal ended.

Late in January, when temperatures descended into the teens and we all wanted to be in Florida with the cast of Miami Vice, this year's members of Jobs for Bay State Graduates were installed. President Justine Ellis, Secretary Rebecca Baker, Coordinator of Civic Affairs Aldo Nolle Coordinator of Career Preparation Gina Lapriore, Coordinator of Social Affairs James Schiavone, and Coordinator of Leadership Kevin Coombs were also inducted as officers at this time. Just as we had settled into the second semester, we were shocked by the Space Shuttle Challenger tragedy, in which all seven astronauts, including teacher Christa McAuliffe, were killed. On a more heartening note, we also learned that four class members had earned seats in all-state music groups. Adam Edwards and Melissa Blanchard were selected for the all-state Concert Choir, Joanne Meyer earned a second chair flute position in the all-state Orchestra, and Gary Wu received the Concertmaster position in this orchestra, making him the best violinist in the state.

As spring fever ran rampant through the school, we began preparations for the Senior Ball. Favors were ordered and the centerpieces were designed. At this time, many of us became nervous, waiting to receive our acceptance letters from colleges. Once the letters arrived, and the future was settled, we could all relax and enjoy the final months of high school. These months flew by, and soon came the last day of school, followed by Academic Awards Night on May 22, 1986. Less than a week later, on May 28, we congregated at the Sheraton Tara in Framingham, for the Senior Ball. The next week was filled with meetings and practices in the mornings, to prepare for the upcoming ceremonies. On Tuesday, June 3 we all met for one last time in the high school auditorium, for Commemoration Night, or as it was previously called, Baccalaureate. The following evening, June 4, both seniors and faculty flocked to the Yankee Drummer Inn in Auburn for the second annual Senior/Faculty Dinner, where everyone had one last chance to meet as a class. Then, finally, came the long-awaited day of Graduation, on Thursday, June 5. As we walked down the aisle at Mechanics Hall to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance," everyone realized that this was the end. But these ending hours also fortold the beginnings of the rest of our lives.

A PROGRESSION FROM THE ROWDINESS OF EIGHTH GRADERS TO THE DEDICATION OF JUNIORS CAN BE SEEN IN THE

Underclassmen

Attending the high school as an eighth grader can be terrifying. Being the youngest and smallest has its problems. Eighth graders continue with their studies week after week, knowing that the next year they will be freshmen.

As freshmen, they feel a bit relieved but realize that the road ahead is still long. At least now they know their way around the school and the familiar faces of some teachers and students. The year seems to drag a little, but eventually it ends.

By the third year these students are well-adapted sophomores, ready to face their learning environment. Many have close friends, hobbies, and special interests in school.

As junior year rolls around, the pressure builds. Students begin to ponder important decisions for their future years. Many consider college as it is just two years away; Many also get their licenses. Commitment and responsibility are developed during this year, as students work on important projects such as the junior class play and prom.

CARRYING ON THE TRADITION HANDED DOWN BY SOCRATES ARE OUR

Faculty

Almost every adult working in the high school has an extremely busy day. Making deadlines, attending meetings, and sharing their wealth of knowledge with students are all important. These people devote their time to the needs of students. They are special.

On the left, an English teacher, Mr. Danielson, shows just how seriously teachers take their jobs. Quickly improvising a scene from Man of La Mancha, Mr. Danielson becomes a living Don Quixote for his students.

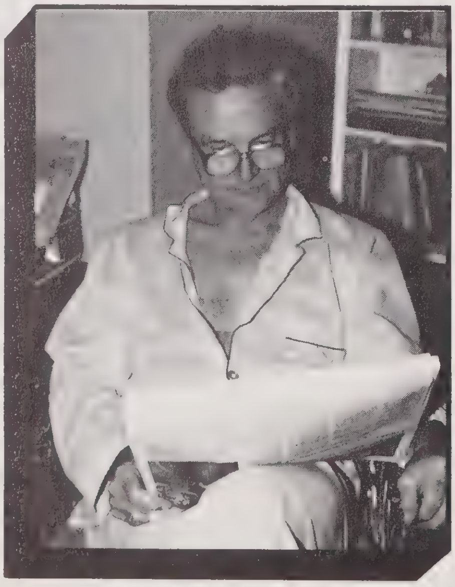
DR. COLLINS

Life After Office Hours



In the beginning was the Superintendent, and parents said that he would run the schools; but, the Superintendent said that he would also have a life outside his office.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. John P. Collins leads a very full life after office hours. He finds time to pursue his own interests, while also devoting time to his family. Dr. Collins enjoys many sports, but is most fond of golfing and running. In 1970, he ran the Boston Marathon. When the idea was first suggested to him, he thought it was crazy. Since the time when he was a paratrooper in the Korean War, he has tried to stay physically fit, but the longest races he had run up to that point were only five miles long. However, by setting his goal and training hard, Dr. Collins finished the race, and placed 648th out of 1000 runners with a time of three hours and forty-one minutes.

Dr. Collins has always felt the same way about education. He believes that education goes beyond the knowledge of reading, writing, and arithmetic; education is comprised of all the disciplines, as well as extracurricular activities. A combination of these will help develop the total person.

ADMINISTRATION

Mr. Charles Ferris, Headmaster

Mr. Joseph Montecalvo, Housemaster

Mr. Kenneth Largess, Housemaster

The Administration at Shrewsbury High School has some of the most difficult jobs in the building. They attempt to provide students with a learning environment that lends itself to a serious education. However, at the same time, administrators try to give the students space, allowing for social and personal growth through the participation in a variety of activities. Throughout the day, the administration is responsible for making sense out of the never-ending chaos of SHS.

The Special Education Department at the high school has taken on somewhat of a different look recently. The department is attempting to create the Special Education Classroom of the future with the help of a grant from Apple Computer Inc. Apple donated over $100,000 worth of computer equipment to the Special Ed Department to use in teaching students with learning disabilities. The grant was given with the hope that these students will be interested enough in the computers to progress more rapidly in their learning. The grant provided forty computers, twenty for use at the high school and twenty for special needs students to use at home. The idea is to "saturate the students with computers."

MR. BRANDMEYER

A Different Teaching Environment

Shrewsbury High School and Assumption College have something in common; Mr. Michael Brandmeyer, who is a special education teacher at the high school, is also a crew coach at Assumption.

Mr. Brandmeyer started rowing his freshman year at Assumption. Some of his friends rowed, and they needed one more person for the JV boat, or it would have been eliminated. After practicing for only three days, Mr. Brandmeyer was involved in his first race, and he continued to row throughout his college days. After graduating, he was unable to find a teaching job so he accepted the offer to be head coach at Assumption while attending graduate school there. The responsiblities of Mr. Brandmeyer's position are considerable. The forty-member team practices twice a day, in the morning and in the afternoon. Although he used to run both practices, now he does only the one in the afternoon, leaving the morning practice to an assitant coach. The crew program at Assumption is small, but very successful. They compete against much larger programs but always manage to have at least one boat in the city finals. After being with the team for ten years, Mr. Brandmeyer is proud of their accomplishments. He enjoys his work as head coach because, although it is a teaching environment, it is different from the one at SHS and serves as a "release" for him.

General information regarding colleges and careers and information on specific colleges is available through computer search.

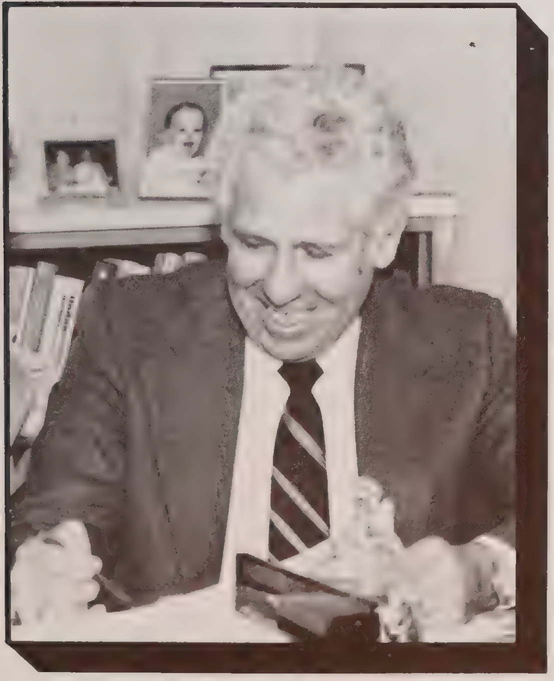
MR. HASSETT

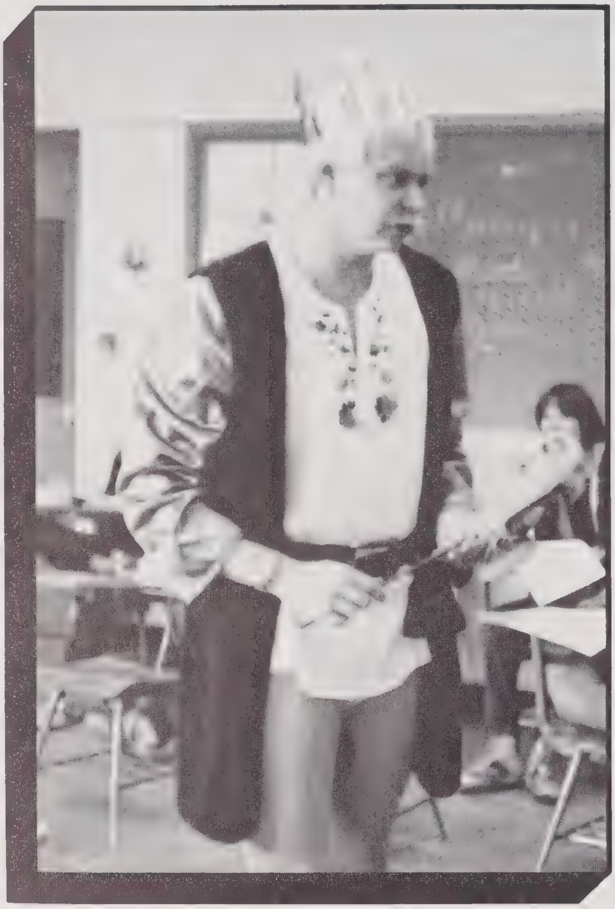
Safety Is His Main Concern



Mr. Daniel Hassett's training as a guidance counselor has left him well prepared for some work that he does outside of school. Mr. Hassett is a member of the Central Massachusetts Chapter of the National Safety Council. One of the programs run by the Safety Council in the Worcester Central Court District is the Probation Alternative Training School, commonly known as PATS. Mr. Hassett is one of the eighteen instructors of this three hour course. The course gives people who have received minor traffic violations an alternative to simply paying their ticket. PATS takes these people and teachers them about traffic laws, even using driving simulators. Mr. Hassett only teaches a few courses a month at PATS. However, over the past summer, he was hired as a full-time consultant. His job was to evaluate the nine-year-old program and recommend any improvements. He found this work very exciting and different. Between his work as a guidance counselor and his teaching at PATS, Mr. Hassett is a very busy man; nevertheless, he still finds time to be a family man. Weddings have become a hobby of his. In the past three years, all three of his children have married. One of Mr. Hassett's biggest joys now is his grandson, with whom he spends considerable time.

MR. DANIELSON

A Man of Many Talents



English, you say? How boring! What else do these teachers do with their lives besides drilling prepositional phrases and parts of speech into students' heads. Even worse, they force these same students to read tremendously long and extremely old books. However, all English teachers are not this dull.

Mr. Norman Danielson is not only a creative, exciting English teacher but also an interesting man outside of school. He is a member of the Ministorial Staff in the New England Synod of the Lutheran Church of America. He states that even though he is not ordained, he is allowed to act as a "substitute pastor" in the church.

You would imagine that Mr. Danielson would have a hard time fitting much more into his busy lifesytle. Besides correcting many sets of papers, he spends almost every weekend with his family on the Cape. In addition, he spends about six hours a week singing in three different musical groups, the Schola Cantorium, the Mendelsohn Singers, and the Worcester Bach Society. The first group is his church choir, which performs at least once a month. The Mendelsohn Singers, the oldest male vocal group in Worcester, also performs once or twice a month. Performing three times a year, the Worcester Bach Society is a very demanding professional singing group which expects its members to practice many hours every week. Even with these demanding singing commitments, Mr. Danielson still finds the time to assign his English students an occasional term paper.

A school-wide writing contest recognized outstanding student writers in grades 8-12. A guest speaker program allowed students and faculty to listen to a number of people talk about writing in their own lives.

MRS. LABELLE

Hidden Boldness and Daring

In 1982, El Salvador was being devastated by some of the bloodiest battles in its civil war between the government and the leftist guerillas. There is no apparent reason why anyone would travel to a nation in this condition; yet traveling to El Salvador is exactly what Mrs. Bonita LaBelle, Director of the English Department, did three years ago. While in the country, the Labelles were constantly protected; they stayed in a secure hotel, had curfews, and were always watched by soldiers. During her stay, Mrs. LaBelle noted that all the beautiful tourist hotels were totally deserted because of the fighting. The purpose of the trip was to arrange an adoption of a Salvadorean child.

Now, one of Mrs. LaBelle's primary concerns outside of school is her family, especially her three-year-old son Gustavo, who is part Mayan and part Spanish. Her other interests include photography, dancing, and tennis. Mrs. LaBelle, who was originally a dance major at the University of Colorado, now has a strong interest in English, concentrated upon 17th century literature and John Donne.

Mrs. Isabelle Chang, Librarian

Mr. Jeffrey Roberts, Coordinator ETV

The Media program is developing and growing in many different directions. The library now has new reference materials and new audio-visual software.

The Educational Television Studio is a educational aide available to all members of the school community. Students can enroll in Television Production Classes to learn about the ever-changing media of television. Teachers also benefit from ETS by being able to develop curriculum materials and have class projects videotaped.

Since 1981, the Humanities Department has been undergoing dramatic changes. New courses, such as Western Civilization and Community Studies have arisen as part of these changes. These courses aim to provide a full sense of the past, by combining history with art, music, philosophy, and video communication. Since the program began, there has been a steady increase in involvement. This year, there were a record three sections of Western Civilization. The department is now considering another change; making Community Studies a required course for all tenth graders. This year, the focus of the annual Spring Humanities Symposium was Jazz in American Culture.

Miss Mary Jane Murray

MISS MURRAY

Discovering the World

It is Miss Mary Jane Murray's job to teach students about foreign countries and cultures. However, what makes her unique is that she has just visited most of the places about which she teaches. A native of Worcester, Miss Murray has traveled throughout Europe and Australia, and New Zealand. She states that being single has given her the freedom to "discover the world." What Miss Murray finds most interesting about her travels is meeting new people around the globe. Through her trips, she has formed friendships with people everywhere.

One of Miss Murray's most memorable experiences was the year she spent teaching English in Switzerland. As well as teaching while in Switzerland, Miss Murray took advantage of her location and traveled throughout the countryside, making her year completely satisfying.

MRS. DHAMI

Performer of Dance

What kind of person has the power and patience to be a math teacher and what would this person do outside of school?

Mrs. Narinder Dhami, an eighth grade math instructor "loves to teach math." She has earned two masters degrees: one in counseling and the other in school administration. She enjoys sharing her knowledge with many people, and tells of her involvement with great enthusiasm. Mrs. Dhami also works as a counselor at a church camp because she loves being with young people so much.

Her hobbies include cooking, entertaining, and Indian dancing. As a member of the Indian Association, she performs the "Bhangra", an Indian dance, on different occasions. Mrs. Dhami is also involved with this group when she celebrates religious days or Indian holidays. Another source of fun for Mrs. Dhami is helping to organize weddings, which she did this past year when she assisted her twenty three-year-old daughter in planning her wedding. Mrs. Dhami's family life, combined with her varied hobbies, make her much more than another face in the eighth grade corridor.

MATHEMATICS
More Than The Basics

Mrs. Gail Swenson, Director Math/Science

Mr. Earl Babineau

Mrs. Constance Bartelson

Mr. George Cote

Mrs. Susan Duquette

Mrs. Margaret Bilodeau

One of the basic purposes of the Math Department at the high school is to prepare students for the future. In order to achieve this goal, math courses aim to teach students more than the basic concepts of mathematics. By providing challenging situations, the teachers give students experience in logical thinking skills and problem solving techniques. These qualities are very important as they lead to self-confidence and independence. An important part of the math curriculum is that math may be taken all four years, giving students a strong background for their future.

MR. HORGAN

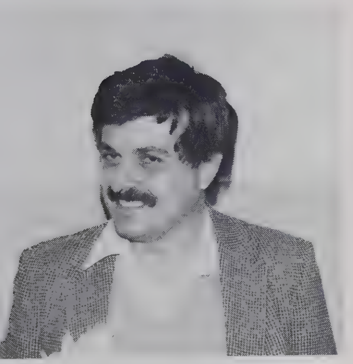
Exploring a New Frontier

Once a teacher, always a teacher. Although in many cases this statement holds true, there are also some exceptions. Before becoming a teacher, Mr. James Horgan had a variety of other jobs, including a career as a Navy aircraft carrier jet pilot during World War II and the Korean War, a fireman, a bus driver, and a factory worker. Through his work, he has travelled around the globe.

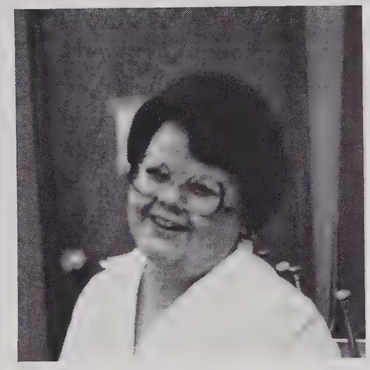
With his extensive background, it is not surprising that computers and radios are Mr. Horgan's favorite hobbies. He considers computers "the new frontier" in education, something that will confront every student. A math teacher for twenty six years, Mr. Horgan has only been teaching computers for the past five years. He truly enjoys his job; he likes the students and the subject matter. That is why, when you see him teaching a class, sitting in front of a computer, or just walking in the hall, he always seems content.

COMPUTERS

Assisting in Furthering Education



Mr. Thomas Plati



Miss Susan Steiner

The Computer Department is offering many new programs to integrate computers into all areas of the education process. Students are now being taught how to use computer tools, such as word processors, databases, and spread sheets. These tools are being taught through related classes. For example, ninth grade students are exposed to two weeks of word processing in their English class. The main goal, according to Computer Coordinator Mr. Thomas Plati, is to have computers used naturally in all areas of education.

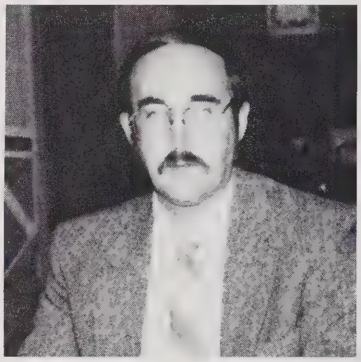
Mr. Robert Cornacchioli

Mr. Francis Goyette



Mr. Hal Hartman

Mr. Ralph Mastrorio

Mr. Donald Pottle

Mrs. Hazel Schroder

Mr. David Whitmore

Mrs. Judith Whitmore

The Science Department aims to provide students with a solid background in the basic sciences, biology, chemistry, and physics. Although there are regular reading and homework assignments, emphasis in these classes in placed upon laboratory experiences, in which students can gain hands-on experience. In order to keep pace with technology, the department is continually purchasing new equipment, such as a Geiger counter for chemistry and Heathkit packages to teach advanced electronics.

In today's fast-paced world, it is almost impossible to keep pace with current information, even on a single subject. How, then, does a science teacher follow all the developments in his field?

Mr. Ralph Mastrorio, biology and bioethics teacher, through reading numerous journals every week, manages to stay abreast of his field. Mr. Mastrorio devotes a large portion of his time to his own education; last year, he received a science fellowship from Boston University. Mr. Mastrorio felt honored to have received the fellowship, and stated that it offered him a "terrific opportunity to learn."

In addition to his interest in biology, Mr. Mastrorio enjoys many other activities. He is an avid runner, who also enjoys swimming, sailing, rock climbing, and cross country skiing. With his diversity of interests, Mr. Mastrorio is certainly a busy man.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE
A New Program

The purpose of the Foreign Language department is to emphasize speaking, listening, reading, and writing skills in a foreign language. In the past few years, the department has operated under a new program, which Dr. Courchesne, Director of Foreign Language, states is better structured, enabling more students to study languages and to continue their studies for all four years.

MR. LACROIX
Father of French Trip

What better place to go for a French field trip than France itself. Travel to France is exactly what Mr. Richard LaCroix and a group of his students do every April. The idea was born, years ago, when someone jokingly said, "Mr. LaCroix, we should take a field trip to France." The idea became more than just talk when he began gathering interested students and obtaining travel information. Now the trip has become a Spring tradition.

Both Mr. LaCroix and his students benefit from the trip. Everyone is able to practice their French through actual usage. Also, there is no better way to learn about the lifestyles of a foreign people than to actually experience them. Mr. LaCroix enjoys the trip because he can relax and get to know his students outside of the school environment. On each trip, the group travels to Paris, where they see all the famous landmarks, including the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, and the Arc de Triomphe. Another interesting sight which the students visit is Jim Morrison's grave. When the week-long trip ends, Mr. LaCroix and students alike, are all sad to see the fun end.

BUSINESS

The Business Department offers a variety of courses to students planning to enter the work force after graduation or to further their business expertise with more professional schooling. There are a variety of courses, including Typing, Accounting, and ABC Shorthand, which prepare students for employment after high school. Other courses, such as Introductory Economics and Business Law, offer students a sound basis for making economic judgments.

MR. SIFF

Shrewsbury's Financial Wizard

Although most people don't realize it, Shrewsbury High has a financial expert within its walls. If asked, Mr. Edward Siff is willing to give anyone advice on how to best invest his money.

Any advice given should not be taken lightly as Mr. Siff is well versed in financial knowledge and experience. He is the President of the Town Employee Credit Union for Shrewsbury, Bolyston, and West Boylston. He helped form a teachers' Credit Union in 1960 with just ten people contributing five dollars apiece, for a total of fifty dollars. Today the credit union, which has expanded to include the entire town of Shrewsbury as well as Boylston and West Boylston, is worth over twelve million dollars.

Beyond his business work, Mr. Siff enjoys a variety of other activities. He likes all sports and actively plays tennis, golf, and volleyball. Mr. Siff is also a veteran traveller. He has visited most European countries as well as the Carribean and Israel. He has also travelled extensively throughout the United States and has helped organize many school trips to such places as Montreal, New York, Washington, and Disney World. Besides having extensive knowledge of business matters, Mr. Siff is also the person to ask regarding most travelling matters.

HOME ECONOMICS
Building Sewing And Cooking Skills

The main purpose of the Home Economics department is to help develop students' skills in the areas of sewing and cooking. In cooking classes, students are taught the basics of serving and preparing food as well as instructed in the fundamentals of nutrition, so that they are able to plan a well-balanced meal. In sewing, students learn how to sew by hand as well as on the sewing machine. Class work involves the making of various articles of clothing, progressing from simple items to more tailored garments.

MRS. MALONEY
It Makes Students Think

Miss Shirley Maloney teaches students survival skills. After holding a variety of food service jobs, such as being the assistant food service director at G. Fox Department Store, Miss Maloney became a teacher at SHS. After fourteen years of teaching, she still loves the job and everything it involves.

Miss Maloney believes that the cooking courses are very important because they teach a survival skill; everyone has to eat to survive. It is also her belief that cooking reinforces basic skills such as reading, calculating, and memory retention. "It makes students think." Cafe 303, an offshoot of the cooking program, was organized and run by Miss Maloney in previous years. The program was a great success, because it helped students with more than cooking skills. They learned how to plan menus, stay within a budget, and keep records.

Although Miss Maloney has other interests such as re-upholstering furniture and traveling, her main source of enjoyment is her job. She loves to teach and often, when leaving the building for the day, finds herself laughing over some memorable event from that day in class.

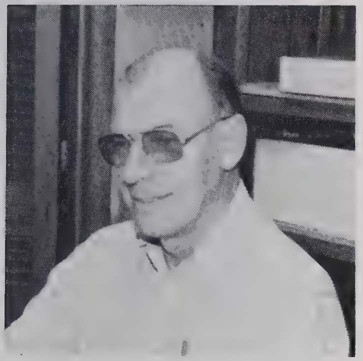
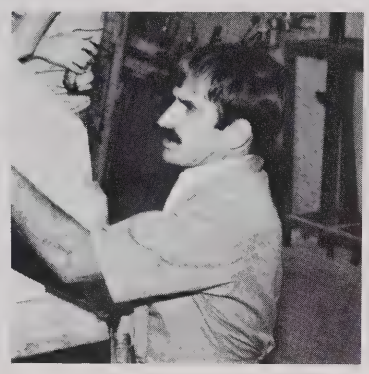
INDUSTRIAL ARTS
Blueprints By Computer



Mr. Francis Rawson, Director



Mr. Peter Olson

In the past year, the Industrial Arts Department has acquired a variety of new equipment. With four new drafting tables, four new computers, and a new blueprint machine, the department is changing with the times. The computers are now being used for computer-aided design, which is much more precise than human design. The computers allow for perfect lettering and line quality. With the new blueprint machine, the department hopes to be able to teach students how to make basic architectural models as well.

A Creative Way Of Expression

The Art Department offers instruction in every grade: The emphasis is on creating an environment in which students can develop artistic competency and technique.

Last year, under the direction of Art Department Director, Mr. Joseph Deignan, thirty art students illustrated and researched forty old houses. The drawings and research were compiled and published in a book entitled Old Houses in Shrewsbury. This book was used this year as a text in Community Studies classes.

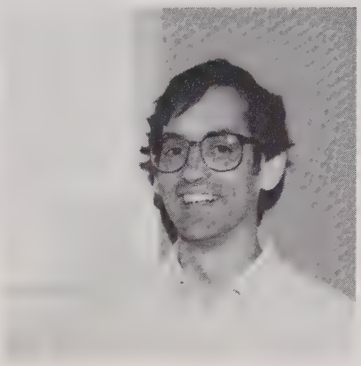
MUSIC
Practice Makes Perfect

Mr. Louis Vella, Director

Mr. Ralph Metcalf

Mr. Jack Feldheimer



Mr. Philip Koziara

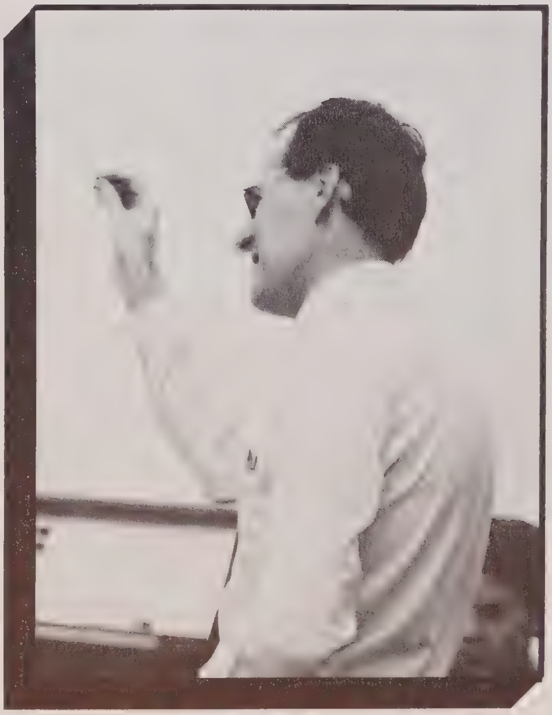
The primary goal of the Music Department is to assist students in their understanding, appreciation, and response to music. The band, orchestra, jazz ensemble, and choir hold many seasonal concerts to share their musical ability with the community. The band also plays an important role at football games and in parades. This year the band and orchestra are planning a trip to compete in Montreal. Another yearly event sponsored by the Music Department is the acclaimed musical, directed by Mr. Feldheimer. Over the past few years, the department has also become involved in the Humanities Symposium, which recognizes music as a related area of the humanities.

MR. METCALF
World Traveller

How does a trumpet-playing high school orchestra conductor enjoy himself outside of school? "Involve himself in many musical activities," you might say, Right? Mr. Ralph Metcalf is involved in many musical activities that take up an average of twenty hours a week. He is a member of the Symphonic Brass Quartet in Worcester and the Central Massachusetts Symphony Orchestra. Being such a talented musician, Mr. Metcalf has performed in numerous shows with various orchestras at the Centrum. These performances include the circus and Smurfs on Ice.

However, Mr. Metcalf does not limit himself to musical activities. He "loves to travel" and has visited every country in Western Europe and even a few in Eastern Europe. He has even sailed across the Atlantic Ocean on the "spectacular" Queen Elizabeth II on its first voyage following the Falkland Island Crisis. Including some musical aspects in his travels, he has visited the birth places of such famous composers as Bach and Hayden. In visiting socialistic countries, Mr. Metcalf found their lifestyles "interesting," and he says the experience helped him "appreciate our way of life better."

You might expect that such a talented man would have been known for his musical abilities when he was in high school. However, as a senior at Dartmouth, Mr. Metcalf won the district track and field championship for his 4:46 running of the mile.



PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Facing Many Improvements

In the past year, the Physical Education Department has seen numerous improvements in its facilities. The department now has lights for the football field and new, re-surfaced tennis courts. Other changes in physical education include the intermural sports programs in basketball, football, and weight lifting. There are also plans to expand this program to include flag football and tennis. Another proposal is the establishemnt of a girls' junior varsity soccer team. Finally, the phys. ed. department is hoping to offer something new next year in gym classes, such as fencing.

The Bear Facts

Running your own business requires a considerable amount of time and effort. Even so, Mrs. Patricia Degon manages to balance the responsibilities of being a physical education teacher with running her teddy bear business.

While on maternity leave last year, Mrs. Degon began making teddy bears. Now she owns and operates her business, Patsy's Bears, with a woman from Troy, New York. Mrs. Degon saw the need for the business in 1985, which was the official Year of the Teddy Bear. In business for over a year now, Patsy's Bears has accounts in five states. Mrs. Degon takes business orders as well as personal ones. She estimates that it takes three hours to make a single bear. The bears come in three sizes, three fur types, and four colors. Mrs. Degon enjoys the business as evidenced by her business card, which reads "Grin and Bear It."

Beyond managing her business, Mrs. Degon spends time with her family as well as collecting antiques and old dolls; she also enjoys snow skiing. Mrs. Degon became involved in physical education because she attended Catholic school which had no gym classes. She joined many after school sports activities and her interest developed from there. Today, Mrs. Degon enjoys her job teaching gym classes.

ALTERNATIVE SCHOOL

Opportunity For Growth And Change

Miss Ann Gustafson

Miss Ellen LeShay

The off-campus Alternative School program, housed at Coolidge School, provides selected students with an opportunity for individual growth and change. The students receive instruction in English, math, social studies, art, gym, health, and group skills. Many of the students earn the maximum of twenty five credits per year. Because of its small size, the program offers individual help to all of the students in all academic areas. This individual assistance allows these people to experience school-related success, often for the first time.

Calm in the Midst of Chaos

Walking into the main office, one might think that the room housed a zoo. Phones ringing, announcements being read over the P.A., and students demanding dismissals — all contribute to the chaos of the office. However, there is one person who tries to keep everything running calmly and smoothly. Mrs. Phyllis Mariano is known to the other secretaries as easy-going and calm in the midst of chaos.

Outside the office, Mrs. Mariano enjoys reading, hand-crafts, and cooking. At this time, she is taking a quilting class. She also knits, crochets, and sews. Once she completes her crafts, she either gives them to people as presents or donates them to her church to sell. When she is not busy making hand-crafts or taking care of her family, Mrs. Mariano finds time to teach Sunday school to first graders.

Mrs. Mariano cares about young people. Before she worked in the main office, she had worked in guidance. She feels secretaries and administrators exist for the students because students are first priority. Mrs. Mariano has close ties with SHS. Her daughter graduated from the high school, as did Mrs. Mariano.

270 Pounds of French Fries a Day

Have you ever wondered who is behind the making of school lunches? Actually, there are many people who make sure that everything about lunch run smoothly. Mrs. Nancy Mikula, the manager of the high school lunch program, is just one of these people.

Mrs. Mikula's responsibilities in the cafeteria are numerous. Not only is she in charge of the four lunch periods, but she also has to provide milk and snacks before school and during cafeteria studies. Providing over eight hundred students with lunch everyday is a big job that involves an entire day of work. To understand the size of the job, one only has to consider that over 270 pounds of french fries are used daily.

Even though her job is demanding, Mrs. Mikula enjoys every minute of it. She compares the day to a dramatic performance. When the doors to the cafeteria open, the curtain rises. Everything is prepared and the students who are spectators can enjoy. Mrs. Mikula loves the contact with all the students and is sad to see the seniors leave at the end of every year. She does her best to see that every lunch period runs smoothly, so that students will be satisfied.

BOTH IN AND OUT OF SCHOOL, THERE IS AN ENTIRE REALM OF ACTIVITIES THAT MAKE UP

Student Life

Diversity is the key to student life, both in and out of school. As everyone is different, so are their interests and hobbies.

The high school offers many activities which can fulfill interests, develop hobbies into skills, and give students enjoyment if they become involved participants. These activities include clubs, musical organizations, and student government groups.

Students also spend most of their time out of school. They sleep, eat, work, study, travel, and party. Shrewsbury's proximity to major cities, the ocean, and mountains provides an outlet for all students' diverse interests. The high school allows students to explore some of these interests as this picture of Michelle Keenan, who is working on the Class of '86 Homecoming float's dragon, illustrates.

The pendulum is swinging

Once again the Student Council started the school year with a variety of activities planned for the year, the first of which was the first annual Homecoming Weekend. The Council took charge of post-game entertainment, including a Homecoming victory dance which drew over four hundred people. Thanks to the eighth grade members, the dance was a huge success. Other activities for the year included the third annual Halloween Party, the Toys for Tots drive, the Valentine's Day Carnation Sale, and the Shamrocks Against Distrophy Drive.

The basic goal of the Student Council is to make the school a better place for students and teachers. In working toward this goal, the Student Council strives for student unity and participation in school activities.

Scholars tackle school's problems

Every year five students are elected by the student body to represent the entire school at School Committee meetings. These students explore problems within the school itself and within the school system. They are also concerned with state and federal policies that effect the educational process. Some of the many projects that the SAC and advisor Mr. John Hodgen have dealt with this year include alternatives to study halls, library passes, the Speakers Program, and world hunger.

Related to the SAC but on a larger scale is the Regional Student Advisory Council. Two Shrewsbury High students are elected to this council which meets every month at the Central Massachusetts Department of Education in West Boylston. At these meetings, members learn about the rights and responsibilities of high school students. After each meeting, the delegates pass the information on to the Student Council so that the entire school may benefit from the knowledge.

Leadership, involvement, and academics

The National Honor Society consists of forty members, who have displayed outstanding academic and leadership qualities, as well as involvement in outside comuunity activities. Voted in by teachers and administrators, NHS members exemplify scholarship, leadership, service, and character. The elected officers for this year were Andrew Swinand - President, Donald S. Gauch - Vice President, Erin Collins - Secretary, and Reta Chin - Treasurer.

Advisor Dr. Anne Murphy directed the NHS to another successful year of fun-filled, charitable activities. Some of these activities included the third annual Halloween party for children in the community, the Thanksgiving basket given to a needy family, and the Christmas project to aid the Mustard Seed in Worcester. In all these ventures, the NHS proved that anything is possible if everyone works together.

Confidence through public speaking

The National Forensic League offers students a chance to become skilled public speakers and gain confidence in their own abilities. Each year, under the direction of Mrs. Kathleen Viscardi, the NFL attends numerous speech tournaments throughout the state. Being successful in the NFL requires dedication and many hours of practicing as well as speaking ability.

Every year, a group of students who have worked diligently and excelled in their categories qualifies for national competition. Over Memorial Day weekend, the students and Mrs. Viscardi travel to the tournament for two days of stiff competition but also some fun. This past year, the national competitors had the luck to travel to Ft. Lauderdale, Florida for this tournament. Once the competition was over, everyone could be found lying on the beach, enjoying the sunny weather and wishing the weekend would never end.

Volunteers needed

Students giving up valuable time to aid others is what Career Opportunity Experience is all about. Pupils volunteer their study hall time to Mr. Manzello, Mrs. Simone, Mrs. Mariano, Mr. Vella, and many others to help other students, to do office work and clerical duties. These students devote their time to working in an area in the school that is of interest to them. In this manner, they will gain valuable experience and training in a field which may benefit their future while also earning credits toward graduation.

"Would those students not in round one please exit for the non-competition area . . . Put your name, your school name, and team number on the back of the answer sheet . . . All answers must be put in the spaces provided or they will not be scored." - So begins another math meet.

Every year, both the Varsity and Freshman Math Teams compete in math meets held throughout Worcester County. Students compete in teams of five against teams from other schools in the region. Each meet is composed of five rounds of individual work plus one team round. Topics vary from round to round, ranging from simple geometry to complex probability and statistics problems. After a grueling hour of math, the highlight of the day is often the snack provided by the host school.

Twenty five cents a copy. "Read all the news that's fit to print!" The Town Crier is on sale. This valuable news source informs the student body of the latest happenings around the school. Mr. John Tsombakos teaches the staff of the newspaper to write their news articles to attract student interest. With his help, the Town Crier is always worth reading.

Four to five issues are published each year, with each containing articles about events and activities throughout the school. The goal of the newspaper is to interest not only the student body but also the faculty and administration. In each issue, there are articles about past events and upcoming activities as well as an advice column, Flash and Scoop, and other regular features.

Displaying young talent

Excelsior, the school literary journal, is controlled by students with assistance from Dr. Dennis Klug. The journal offers a chance for writers throughout the school to have their work published, and read by a wide audience. Another unique feature that Excelsior offers to student writers is peer critique and review of their work. In this way, students can listen to comments on their writing and hope to improve their skills. The entire process of publishing a literary journal is handled by Excelsior. Members write material, type all submissions, and print and staple the final product themselves. Each issue of the journal displays the literary talent at Shrewsbury High and offers students a chance to consider a future in the areas of journalism or creative writing.

Developing sense of wonder

The Greenhouse Club, under the direction of Mrs. Judy Whitmore, and the newly formed Science Club, advised by Mrs. Gail Swenson, give interested students a chance to explore the many facets of the wide field of science, from plants to chemicals.

In the Science club, students discover many aspects of science through hands-on laboratory experiments ranging from dissections to chemical reactions.

The Greenhouse Club members are responsible for maintaining the plants that live and grow in the high school greenhouse. These two clubs offer students the opportunity to explore areas of science that are sometimes not covered during a regular class.

Members of the Photography Club work closely with the four advisors in order to increase their abilities to take clear, interesting pictures, as well as to learn how to develop the pictures themselves. The students are sent out on assignments to take pictures of school events and activities, public figures, and other candid shots. Once the pictures have been taken, members are sent into the darkroom to develop, proof, and enlarge the photos. Near the end of the year, a display is prepared using enlargements of the students' work for the entire school to view.

What's cooking?

The aroma of freshly cooked pies, cookies, and appetizing foods filters the halls, enticing the faculty and students to investigate. When it comes to the Chef's Club, there is no such word as dieting. The Chef's Club is a group of students who are interested in the art of fine cuisine. These students' special talents are extended from the home and developed at the high school under the direction of Mrs. Shirley Maloney. Meals and desserts can be purchased for people who want a change from cafeteria food. Reaching out

The Junior Red Cross is a group of caring and understanding young people at Shrewsbury High. These people sacrifice their time and extend great effort in attempting to help those who are in need. With the support of Miss Mary Jane Murray, the group has raised money to aid unfortunate people and even visited elderly people in hospitals and nursing homes.

The experience that the students in the Jr. Red Cross receive when visiting less fortunate people helps them to realize and understand some of the problems that exist in today's society. Through this experience, they gain a sense of caring and responsibility that allows them to reach out and help someone.

Students take the initiative

In its three years at the high school, Students Against Driving Drunk has attempted to prevent students from driving while under the influence of alcohol. Members of SADD realize the dangers of driving drunk, and hope to prevent needless injuries and deaths to Shrewsbury students by educating them to these dangers.

In order to educate the students, SADD tries to keep the awareness level up by presentations and activities which are held at key times throughout the year. Some of these key times include before Thanksgiving break, before Christmas vacation, before April vacation, and before prom and graduation time. Some of the presentations have included a video skit depicting a hypothetical situation and an assembly where an EMT showed slides of alcohol-related accidents. However, the most memorable SADD presentation was the two assemblies which featured Doug Flutie. Doug came to speak for SADD at the request of member Beth Gordon. The basic message of Doug's talk was to "think twice." He stated that students should always be careful not to drink and drive and not to ride in a car with someone who has been drinking. Doug's message seemed to get through to the students, possibly because they could relate to him more than to older speakers.

One serving zero

In its first year at S.H.S., the Volleyball Club has drawn unexpected excitement and enthusiasm from both students and teachers. The club meets between sports seasons, allowing those who wish to stay physically active, the opportunity to do so, as well as giving those interested in the game a chance to play. Founded by Bob Grady and directed by Dr. Stephen Mills, who coaches members and organizes games, the Volleyball Club is enjoying success as a new club. Places, everyone

Students involved in the Junior Class Play and the school musicals are all members of a club entitled Theatre Arts. This acitivity allows students to expand their personalities and demonstrate their abilities to perform on stage. The Theatre Arts club is an exciting way to acquire the skills needed to act. Besides learning how to aqct, members also gain insight into the preparation necessary for staging a show and the publicity that is needed to make it successful. All of these facets of theatre are learned from one man, Mr. Jack Feldheimer, who works diligently throughout the year to make the stage productions at S.H.S. a great success.

No such thing as a dumb jock

Every Shrewsbury student who receives a varsity letter for his participation in a sport automatically becomes a member of the Lettermen's Club. The main responsiblity of this organization is the running of the School Store. With the help of Mr. Nick DiPilato, the store sells Shrewsbury sweatsuits, shirts, and hats, as well as breath mints and Tic-Tacs. The Lettermen's Club also takes pride in the success of Shrewsbury's sports teams and in the individual accomplishments of its athletes.

It's all downhill from here

Those people who cannot get enough of the bitter cold, the snow, and the winter wind, are prime candidates for membership in the Ski Club. One of the advantages of the Ski Club is that it provides a way for students with a common interest, skiing, to join together. Over the course of a winter, the club organizes many trips to places such as Cannon Mountain, Mt. Snow, and Killington, so that members can ski as a group. Under the guidance of Mr. Robert Cornachioli and Mr. Jan Hanratty, members can spend fun-filled weekends flying down the slopes, with the wind rushing at them and danger never far away.

The long needed revival of the Pep Club occurred this year, lumping together the fans of the football, soccer, basketball, track, and baseball teams. A future in business

Typing, shorthand, dictation - all these are talents that require practice and patience. Shomty is a group of hardworking girls who have an interest in the business world. Mrs. Schlemminger, Mrs. Gustafson, and Miss Bertonazzi advise their members to work hard to better prepare them for futures in business. The preparation not only makes them responsible but gives them the confidence necessary for success. This year, Shomty held some fundraisers, including making and selling their own stationery. The money gained from their ventures will be used toward field trips and the club's end of the year banquet.

Holiday season ushered in

Twas the night of the Christmas Dance, and all around the gym, clamored the sounds of merriment, bursting from within.

Introducing another first, the Class of 1986 sponsored a Christmas Dance and raffle on December 14, 1985. Although the function's main purpose was fundraising, the seniors also hoped to instill holiday spirit throughout the school. Preparation began early, as seniors printed raffle books and dance tickets, arranged for refreshments, and planned the decorating of the gym. the dance was held in the gym. to allow for a larger crowd.

As the final week approached, the decorating team shifted into high gear. The major projects included a scenic Christmas town and Santa's sleigh, constructed by Dean Hirtle.

On Saturday afternoon, the crew arrived to transform the gymnasium into a winter wonderland. With the help of streamers, flower petals, a brilliantly lit Christmas tree, and Santa's sleigh packed full of presents, the atmosphere was complete.

At 7:30, students began to arrive, dressed in their Christmas best. Whether dancing to the beat of Phil Collins, or chatting with their friends, the students filled the room with holiday spirit. Refreshments were sold in the cafeteria by eighth grade helpers, providing a breath of air and a thirst-quenching drink.

Between the raffle and the dance, the entire holiday venture proved profitable. But more importantly, it provided an opportunity for students in grades nine through twelve to celebrate the Christmas season together.

And people exclaimed, ere they left for the night, Merry Christmas to all, the dance was out of sight.

Gymcraftics: a unique facet

One unique facet of Shrewsbury High School is the gymcraftics program. Coordinated by Mr. Jeff Robbins, this class consists of twenty students who meet daily, learning routines as well as running obstacle courses to gain agility.

Beyond class activities, members are given the opportunity to be a part of the Gymcraftics Community Tour Group. This group includes members from all over town and of all ages. These thirty-plus people practice weekly, designing choreographed routines, demonstrating both pair and group talent. The group performs for senior citizens, at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center, and at elementary schools. In the eighth year of its existence, the program is still growing and it remains an enjoyment to those involved.

Give me an "S"

An "S" for Shrewsbury, Spirit, Success . . . At the core of all school spirit related activities at the high school, the Spirit Committee is responsible for generating enthusiasm throughout SHS. Under the guidance of Mr. Thomas Plati and Mr. Norman Danielson, the Spirit Committee organizes and conducts pep rallies during the year and Spirit Week in the spring. Members of the committtee can always be found in the art room making signs, or at a sports event displaying their "spirit." The basic purpose of the Spirit Committee is to instill school pride and spirit in every student.

Get out your blue and gold pins, your unique hats, and clothes that clash - Spirit Week is here! The purpose of Spirit Week is to spark enthusiasm and strengthen school pride. This week includes four days of dress competition which culminates in a tug-of-war between the four classes at the end of the week's spirit rally. Events such as a poster contest, an obstacles course, crab soccer, a Paul Revere relay test each class, to determine which one has the most spirit. The winning class has their year engraved on a plaque which hangs in the front office, a reminder to all of Shrewsbury pride.

And a tradition begins

This year, Mr. Ferris introduced a new tradition at Shrewsbury High School, Homecoming. This event was planned for the weekend of October 18th and 19th. Each of the four classes as well as the town participated in the celebration.

The Friday of Homecoming Weekend was distinguished by the traditional Blue and Gold Day as well as a pep rally. The Blue and Gold competition was held between homerooms, with four homerooms winning donuts the following Monday for having one hundred percent of their students wearing the school colors. During the pep rally, grades nine through twelve displayed their spirit by cheering, clapping, and throwing confetti. The rally was highlighted by performances from Mark Parker as Elvis Presley and Mr. Danielson as Madonna. The sophomores defeated the seniors, juniors, and freshmen in the "Rowdie" cheering competition.

One moment of special interest at the spirit rally was the announcement of the Homecoming King, Queen, and Court. One boy and one girl were chosen to represent each class, with the senior pair crowned as King and as Queen. Selected by student vote, the group consisted of Jim Firmes-King, Lauren Renihan-Queen, and Joe Spellman, Michelle Prue, John Samia, Rochelle Cohen, Bryan Sullivan, and Juliet Baker - Court.

Saturday's event included a parade, the football game, a reception for reunion classes, and a Homecoming dance. The parade began at 12:30 with the band leading the way from the town hall to Bergstrom Field. The band was followed by a float from each of the four classes plus a float organized by the Class of '39. Although the weather was wet, nothing could dampen the spirit of those who were part of the parade.

The football game against Clinton High School began at 1:30 on a muddy and rain drenched Bergstrom Field. Despite the poor conditions, the Colonials fought hard and defeated the opposition 13-0.

The final event of the weekend was the Homecoming dance held in the cafeteria Saturday night. Over four hundred students attended to help celebrate the afternoon's victory, and the beginning of a new tradition.

Yearbook staff survives

The 1986 Yearbook Staff was appointed knowing absolutely nothing about yearbook production. With help from the advisers, and from Dan Smith, the Jostens Publishing representative, the staff completed five deadlines in six months, and lived to tell about it. Although each member of the staff put many hours of work into this yearbook, some labored above and beyond the call of their duty. We thank the following people for their outstanding efforts, and we are grateful that they were always there when we needed them:

Paula Ferguson, for typing all our copy, and transforming our confusing notes into stories; also for taking and developing last minute pictures.

Lauren Renihan, for finding the time to prepare a slide show, gather facts, and take care of all the jobs that nobody else wanted.

Becky Mattress, for compiling endless computer lists and completing them almost before they were requested.

Chris Rangel and Heather Fearn, for stepping in to take over vacated positions.

Leaders of the pack

Near the end of every school year, members of the Band, Orchestra, and Concert Choir elect their officers for the following year. The most important office is that of President. Presidents of the musical groups are responsible for leading their organization, building spirit, and helping to organize parties and fund drives. Librarians are responsible for all of the music. Section Reps are considered the most talented musicians and must guide the less experienced members.

Districts, All-States challenge musicians

On January 8, 10, and 11, high school musicians from throughout Central Massachusetts gathered to share their common interest in music. The annual district festival involved a concert performed by four different groups - orchestra, band, chorus, and jazz ensemble. Shrewsbury High was well represented, as many SHS musicians survived the stiff competition to perform to a full house at Mechanics Hall in Worcester.

A few extremely skilled musicians were selected from the district group and recommended for the all-state festival. These talented musicians performed at the Andover Performing Arts Center on April 5th.

All womens group receives new title

Everyday, thirteen of the most talented singers at Shrewsbury High gather to sing a capella in the new Women's Chamber Singers vocal group. This group provides these girls with the opportunity to sing difficult music and learn more about the intricate harmonies involved, something that is not done in Concert Choir. All of the singers are challenged by the music, and are able to test the limits of their singing ability. After listening to auditions, Mr. Jack Feldheimer chose each member of the select group, to make sure that he had the best group possible. Every girl feels honored to be a member of this quality ensemble which entertains at various concerts throughout the year.

Church concerts brighten Christmas

Shrewbury High School has always been lucky to have many talented singers, who make up the Concert Choir. Under the direction of Mr. Jack Feldheimer, the choir has had another very successful year. Led by President Maria Taylor, the group performed at the Christmas Concert at SHS as well as visiting various local churches to perform. With a group of very talented seniors, including Adam Edwards, Melissa Blanchard, and Dadene Robert, These concerts went off without a hitch. Although the students love to sing, the highlights of the year are the year-end trips to Hopkinton State Park and Riverside Amusement Park.

Performing group tours Montreal

The largest of the musical performing groups, the band is also one of the busiest. Throughout the school year, the band performs in concerts, marches in parades, and provides the entertainment during half-time shows for all the home football games. Such varied activities require the dedication of all of the over one hundred members.

One of the big thrills for band members this year is the biannual trip, which is taken with the orchestra. This year, the musicians ventured to Montreal, Canada, for a three day trip in April. During their stay, the musical groups performed in concert and also engaged in plenty of sightseeing. To raise money for this trip, the Music Department held a number of fundraisers, including the annual Membership Fund Drive in October and the raffle which is held in February. Through these money-raising ventures, the band and orchestra managed to raise enough money to keep the cost of the trip low for everyone.

Preparing for the future

Shrewsbury High has two performing groups that are not often heard about - the Eighth Grade Band and the Eighth Grade Chorus. Under the direction of Mr. Philip Koziara and Mr. Jack Feldheimer, both groups train and prepare so that they will be ready to enter the high school Band and Concert Choir in their freshman year. However, these ensembles are not merely stepping stones. Both groups practice and perform throughout the year, and the band can be seen marching in the Memorial Day Parade.

Improvisation extends the limits of musicians

The Jazz Ensemble provides talented musicians at Shrewsbury High with the opportunity to expand their abilities. Under the direction of Mr. Louis Vella, this small group performs a diverse range of music, from true jazz to slow ballads to rock tunes. The ensemble performs at its own pop-style concerts throughout the year, as well as playing in the mid-winter concert and at music awards and Commemoration Evening in the spring.

Concert master realized best in state

Learning to play a classical instrument, such as the violin or cello takes considerable stamina. Many Shrewsbury students have exhibited their strength and talent by joining the Orchestra. Directed by Mr. Ralph Metcalf, the orchestra consists of all string instruments: the violin, the viola, the cello, and the bass. Although the future of the organization looks bright, because of the talent of many underclassmen, the orchestra will certainly miss its concertmaster, Gary Wu, in the upcoming years. The past year was a great success for the group, as they have been constantly developing their talent, and as a result are playing more difficult music than in the past.

Special addition to halftime shows

Although the band is the highlight of the half-time shows, the show would not be complete without the added talent of the flag corps and majorettes. Under the direction of coach Joan Petronio, this year's flag corp added to the visual art on the field. As captain of the majorettes, Amy Feeney took charge and formed an excellent team of baton twirlers. Under the expert leadership of Drum Majorette Michelle Garand, the entire ensemble of band flags, and twirlers, took shape, marching to the beat of the same drum.

Dolly's back

During the months of January through March, over 160 students met to rehearse for this year's musical, Hello Dolly, directed by the talented Jack Feldheimer. The cast was headed by senior Melissa Blanchard in the title role of Dolly. The plot of the show involved Dolly's scheme to marry Horace Vandergelder, played by Russell Vanderpool. Other major characters included Cornelius, played by Adam Edwards, and Irene Molloy, played by Lydia Deranian; however, the majority of the cast was composed of the chorus, who sang and danced in the main production numbers.

FROM FOOTBALL TO GOLF, OUR TEAMS ARE BEGINNING A WINNING TRADITION IN

Sports

''Shrewsbury '85 - earn everyone's respect.'' This quote from the football team's t-shirts exemplifies the spirit of the team and their hope to once again become a powerhouse in the Midland League.

This team spirit is becoming more common among all the sports teams in the fall, winter, and spring. Shrewsbury crew revived its dismal 1984 season and turned the 1985 into a winning season. Keeping with tradition, the girl's spring track team captured its eighth consecutive District E title with standout performances from Caryn Figueras and Betsy Cowles.

In fall sports action, the teams looked to improve upon last year as well. The novice girls' soccer team had a much more successful second year. The football team won many games, which is certainly an improvement on the past.

Football

Upset of cross-town rival highlights season

The Shrewsbury High Football Team's winning spirit started in the weight room during the hot, summer nights of 1985. The returning, dedicated Colonial players worked diligently, getting into shape for the upcoming season. Practice began in mid-August, with captains Mark Parker and Scott VanderSea leading the team. After five pre-season scrimmages, the team appeared to be working as a tight unit.

September 21st brought the first real test as Shrewsbury faced Burncoat. The team emerged victorious and followed this victory with another against Burncoat. As the season continued, the team was handed losses by Maynard and Algonguin, but maintained their poise and increased their record to 5-2-1. With only two games remaining, the team was guaranteed a winning season, something of which the players, coaches, and fans should all be proud.

The true test of the season was the same against cross-town rival, St. Johns. The Pioneers entered the same undefeated while Shrewsbury was 4-2. The two thousand people who ascended the bleachers that Friday night were to witness an astounding battle of the lines. The duel was fought on every tackle, with the Shrewsbury line aggressively attacking the opposition. Although the final score was tied, 12-12, Shrewsbury won a moral victory by upsetting the number one team in Division 1.

Junior Varsity Football

Football future looks bright at SHS

The future of the Shrewsbury Football program looks increasingly bright. Matching the success of the varsity team, this year the JV football squad continued its legacy of underclass domination on the field. A combination of consistent yardage on the ground and timely passing made the JV offense a force in the Midland League. The defense also contributed to the team, allowing meager ground yardage to all opponents.

One of the highlights of the season was the St. John's game, which is always a big game. The game was especially important this year, as St. John's was the only team to defeat the JV squad last year. The all-around hard-hitting game included many flashes of brillance on offense, which left Shrewsbury victorious, 14-8.

With strong talent coming up through the ranks, the JV and Varsity football teams should be worthy competitors in the Midland League for years to come.

Cheerleading

Even rain can't dampen the spirits of these girls

With a winning football team this year, the football cheerleaders had something to cheer about. Attendance was nearly perfect, helping to boost morale. The most exciting moment of the season occurred when the game against Burncoat ended, leaving Shrewsbury victorious for the first time in over two years. Another highlight of the season was the Homecoming game, when the cheerleaders marched and cheered in the pouring rain. But even the rain could not dampen their spirits, as the team again emerged victorious - this time beating Clinton 13-0.

Field Hockey

Reta and Nicky score for the opposing team

The Shrewsbury High School Girl's Field Hockey team, with varsity coach Judy Webster and JV coach Joan Couture, had a relatively successful season. Lead by team captain Nicki Bates and co-captain Reta Chin, the team had an overall record of 6-4-4. The leading scorer for the year was Doreen Lee.

One of the most memorable moments of the season occurred during a home game against Maynard. With the score still 0-0, Reta and Nicki had the ball near the Shrewsbury goal line. Reta attempted to flick the ball out of the case but instead deflected it off of Nicki's leg, into the goal. Reta and Nicki had scored for the opposing team! The coach's only comment was, "Don't worry about it, the ball should never have been down there in the first place."

Boys' Soccer

Injuries create loss in momentum

The Shrewsbury Boy's Soccer season began on a promising note, with three consecutive wins. One of these victories was quite a suprise, as the team defeated North High for the first time in thirteen years. Soon, however, injuries began to affect the team. With the goalie, some defensive players, and a few forwards injured, the team suffered back to back losses. Once the losing streak started, the team's morale decreased, making it difficult to regain any momentum. Although the team did not do particularly well, many players had outstanding seasons. Marc Mancini was the leading goal scorer and in the last game of the season, every senior ended the game with at least one goal or assist.

Girls' Soccer

Success was the result of hard work, cooperation and compatibility

The Shrewsbury Girls' Soccer team achieved their set goal and more in this, the second year of the team's existence. The pre-season expectation was a "50-50" season. This goal was totally changed by mid-season, when this Colonial team had already accumulated enough wins to insure a winning season. "Getting our 69% win record and going to districts was gravy," stated Coach Jeff Robbins. The soccer team's success was the result of the hard work, cooperation, and compatibility of the team members.

Boys' Cross Country

Shrewsbury out-runs Hudson clinching a second place Midland League finish

The Boys' Cross Country team waited patiently as their bus wandered through the back roads of Hudson, in search of the New Hudson cross country course. The pensive look on Coach Warren's face illustrated the importance of the meet. Soon after the course was located, the boys filed to the starting line, awaiting the gun. When the results of the meet were tallied, Shrewsbury came out on top, winning the meet by one point and clinching a second place Midland League finish. Captain Tom Peterson commented, "Shrewsbury simply wanted it more. The boys were hungry for this victory and they earned it."

The entire season was a success, as the team ran strides ahead of many area teams. By encouraging dedication and hard work from the team, Coach Warren helped lead them to their success.

Girls' Cross Country

Shrewsbury charges into a successful season

The Girls' Cross Country team charged into their successful season with a win over Fitchburg on September 10. Through September and October, the team of sixteen remained undefeated, adding a Midland League title and a third place finish in the Nashoba Invitational meet on October 26 to their list of successes. Shrewsbury's dual meet versus Wachusett threatened a loss, but they were again victorious and well-prepared for their last dual meet against Nashoba. Nashoba won, but not without a strong fight by Shrewsbury. The girls ended the season with a 10-1 record in dual meets. Shrewsbury again fared well at the district meet held in Gardner on November 9. The girls placed fourth, thus qualifying for the state meet held on November 16 at Franklin Park in West Roxbury. At the state meet, the girls placed fourteenth out of twenty-three teams.

Boys' Basketball

"We have a great bunch of athletes with positive attitudes . . ."

Positive attidue results in success

Throughout the pre-season competition, the Shrewsbury Boys' Basketball team showed great promise. The season started well, with the team winning its first nine games. The tenth game saw the nine face a loss to Marlboro, also undefeated at the time. The team agrees that the credit for their outstanding record belongs to Head Coach Keith Hochstein and senior captain Dean Hirtle.

One past mid-season, the future looked grim, as senior starters Dan White and Dean Hirtle sustained injuries, which would take them out for the rest of the season. The return of senior guard Steve McSweeney and the strength of the entire team helped the Colonials to overcome the loss of the two key players, and led them to the Clark Tournament and district competition. Captain Dean Hirtle commented on his team stating, "We have a great bunch of athletes with positive attitudes."

Girls' Basketball

Shrewsbury obtains long awaited revenge

After losing three tough games during the 1984-85 season to Milford HS, the Shrewsbury Girls' Varsity basketball team found revenge in 1986, beating Milford by fourteen points. The victory had special meaning for the seniors on the squad, especially Captain Kirstin Losert, who had witnessed the defeats the year before. One of the main goals of the team for this season was to avenge the previous year's losses. When the team defeated Milford, they took sole possession of second place in the Midland League, showing supreme hustle and sheer will power of the entire squad.

Cheerleaders

Ever-present cheerleaders cheer team to victory

The 1986 Colonial basketball season was brightened by the ever-present cheerleading squad. Led by senior captain Becky Mattress, the squad consisted of twelve varsity members, including one brand new member, Donna Shustack. The season proved exciting, as the team won game after game, beginning witht he Clark Tournament. After helping the basketball teams to victory, the cheerleaders prepared for their own tournaments, to be held at Hudson High School and St. John's. With a healthy squad, the girls can only hope for the best.

Gymnastics

New coach sparks team to winning season

The 1986 Gymnastics team, under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Niechowadowicz-Walsh and a new assistant coach, Mrs. Lynn Demaria, was very competitive in the league this year. Sparked by the tales of Mrs. Demaria, a former collegiate gymnast, the team worked its way through the season, displaying skill and grace. Mrs. Demaria also aided the team with her ability to demonstrate difficult manuevers.

Despite a young team, with fifteen underclassmen and only three seniors, the gymnasts had a successful season. Senior co-captains Michelle Garand and Lisa Pescaro, as well as senior Bill Risk, were all instrumental in the team's record of 6 and 4.

Hockey

Hockey team inspired by motion picture

Only in its fifth year of existence, the Hockey program at Shrewsbury High School is thriving. After the first few losing seasons, the team has come alive, barely missing the playoffs last year, and this year the team, under the captaincy of senior Jeff Lewis, the fine coaching of Phil Irving, led the Midland League until their January game against Marlboro.

One reason for the success of hockey at Shrewsbury has been the enthusiasm of the team members. This spirit was displayed by the team's take- off on the Hanson brothers from the movie SLAP-SHOT; every team member brought glasses to wear, and imitated the Hanson's skating style during a pre-game warm-up. With this spirit of togetherness the hockey team has put together a winning season with their 10-2-2 record.

Boy's Indoor Track

Striking back

In its first dual meet against Fitchburg, the Boys' Indoor Track team faced a tough challenge, and just emerged victorious. Throughout the rest of the season, the team swept its meets, leaving its opponents in the dust, with one exception. This exception was long-time rival St. John's. St John's had dominated many events, especially the Martin Luther King relays, for the past few years. This year, the boys wanted to change the trend. Colonial captain Tom Peterson remarked, "We've been waiting too long for this one." The team won the relay, with key performances from Co-Captain Charles Eck, Ron Iacovelli, Craig Spence, and Bob Grady.

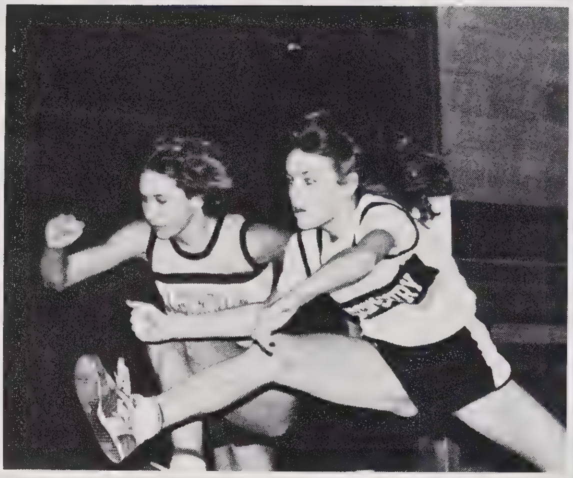
Girls Indoor Track

Eight years and still fighting



Shrewsbury High Schools' Girls' Indoor Track team had one of their closest meets in many years. The League Meet in February left Shrewsbury a mere two points ahead of closest competitor, Wachusett Regional. Great performances in the last two events secured the win for the Shrewsbury girls. Captain Marybeth Curran exclaimed, "The pressure of possibly being the first Shrewsbury team to lose a meet in eight years pushes us to do our best!"

The team has no senior members this year which promises another great season for the year to come. The girls maintain that with the absence of senior leadership, the team members must pull together and encourage one another to do their best.

Boys' Spring Track

Boys clinch title by supreme effort in relay

After working hard for four years, Shrewsbury's Boys' Track team accomplished a very significant victory on May 11th, 1985. After hearing the announcement that the team had won the 24th annual District E Boys Track and Field Championship, Coach Gordon Warren turned, raised his arms, and shouted "It's about time. It was a long time coming."

It was not easy for the team to defeat their town rival, St. John's High School. Sean Hearns pulled through in the 4 X 440 Relay when he passed a Leominster runner in the third lap. This feat meant a win for the team.

Girls' Spring Track

Cowles wins the first girls' district triple jump

Despite the sun and the heat, Shrewsbury dominated the District E Track and Field Championships at Bergstrom Field. On May 11th, the girls' team captured the Class A title for an unprecedented eighth straight time. Under the coaching of Nick DiPilato the Colonials won eleven of the sixteen events, setting a new season total point record of 185 and a half.

Two outstanding double winners emerged from the meet: Caryn Figueras and Betsy Cowles. While Figueras won the shot put and the 100 meter hurdles, Cowles won the first ever girls' district triple jump and then took the 880.

Rain insures victory for Shrewsbury

May 21st saw Shrewsbury's varsity baseball team take on the favored Marlboro Nine at Marlboro; however, Shrewsbury was up for this one. In the first six innings Shrewsbury dominated, taking a commanding nine to two lead. Marlboro recovered in the bottom half of the sixth inning, trouncing Shrewsbury's starting pitcher. With a score of nine to six, the rains came, delaying the game. As the rain and lightning continued, the teams waited for the word from the umpires. With no let up in sight, the umpires finally called the game and Shrewsbury left victoriously.

Crossed signals result in sudden victory

On May 14th, the Shrewsbury softball team took the field against Westboro, the perennial archrivals. During the tied seventh inning of this game, Shrewsbury's sole base runner, Amy Feeney, stood on third base, anxiously awaiting the next batter. Having one out already and needing at least one run, the team grew more tense. When Doreen Lee hit a fly ball to left field, coach Cheryl St. Onge signalled Amy to stay at third. However, the signals got crossed and she tagged up, beating the ball to home plate, as the entire Shrewsbury team stared on in disbelief. According to Captain Kirsten Losert, Amy strategically knocked the ball away from the Westboro catcher. She scored the last run of the game and changed what could have been a disaster into a victory.

Boys' Crew

Varsity crew achieves long-time goal

On May 1st, 1985, the Shrewsbury High School boys' crew team finally achieved their long-time goal — they beat another team. Boosted by the purchase of eight new fiberglass oars, the boys' varsity beat the team from East Lyme, Connecticut. The other three Shrewsbury teams, boys' JV, girls' varsity, and girls' JV, also won, completing the first Shrewsbury sweep in many years.

The fiberglass oars, which weigh only one-third as much as the ancient wooden ones the team had been using, were acquired through the efforts of Pamela Kraus, the boys' coach. Later in the year, the team also purchased a fiberglass shell. Although it is a used 1978 model, it is a huge improvement over the twenty-year-old shells the team was using previously.

Boys Tennis

District trips springs new courts

Upon learning that the high school's tennis courts will finally be resurfaced this year, the boy's tennis team expressed their relief. They felt that they deserved decent courts, especially since they have gone to districts the past two years. The girls' team has also had successful seasons for the past few years. Captain Mike Gatzios did have one regret though; there will be no more jokes comparing the cracks in the court to the Grand Canyon.

Golf

New coach sparks Golf Team to a winning season

An early spring, warm afternoon sunshine, and Mt. Pleasant Country Club's rolling fairways and fast greens combined to inspire the Golf Team to a winning season. They swept their matches with Marlboro, Hudson, Auburn, and West Boylston. Coach Robert Cornacchioli, who experienced his first year as coach seemed well pleased with his young golfers.

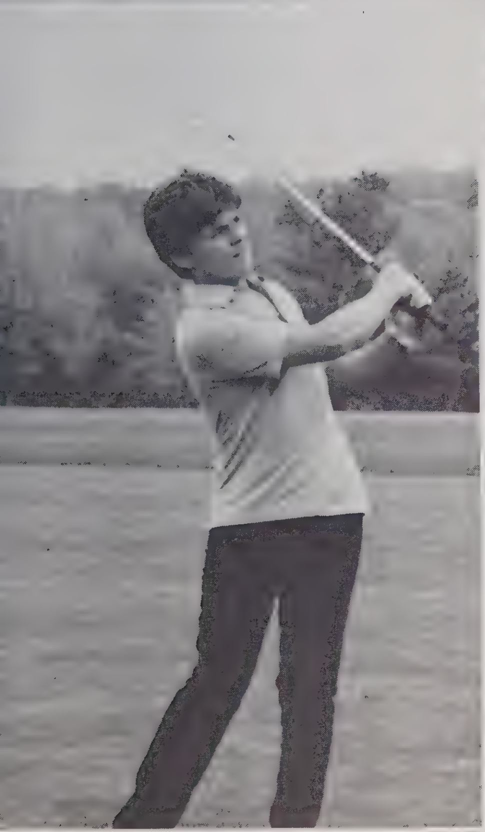
Sports Review

A recap of the 85-86 sports season



As the 1985-86 sports season arrived, Shrewsbury High School realized a renewed interest by the students, teachers, and parents in the athletic teams. This was due in part to the success and enthusiasm of the football team, but also to the continued winning streak of the cross country teams, and the unexpected victories by the girls' soccer team, who advanced to the semi-finals for the District title. A year that, at the start, was considered to be a rebuilding year for the field hockey team turned into an outstanding season, with shut-outs coming at the expense of Hudson and Clinton.

During the winter months Shrewsbury teams again triumphed. The hockey team regaled their fans with their improvisation of a Hollywood movie, SLAP-SHOT, and for the first time the school took notice as the team proved their dominance in the Midland League. Boys' basketball overcame injuries to key starters by relying on an entire team effort, and the girls' team had a solid year. After defeating league rival Milford, they took sole possession of second place in the Midland League.

Shrewsbury's athletic teams have given all their fans and supporters something to really cheer about this year.

The Essence of America

SEVEN BRAVE ASTRONAUTS ARE REMEMBERED AS HEROES

On January 28, 1986, the world, as well as the students at SHS, was shocked by the announcement from NASA that "Earlier today, just one minute and thirteen seconds after lift-off, the Space Shuttle Challenger exploded. All seven astronauts, including teacher Christa McAuliffe, died instantly."

This mission, the 25th for the space shuttle program and the 10th for the Challenger, was surrounded by media fanfare, as Christa McAuliffe was to be the first teacher and ordinary citizen in space.
Francis Scobee, Michael Smith, Judith Resnik, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Gregory Jarvis, and Christa McAuliffe are seven people who will be remembered as heroes in the United States. They represent the essence of America, its pioneer spirit and its desire to overcome all obstacles. On that fateful day, these seven brave people "slipped the surly bonds of earth to touch the face of God."

Middle Right: The two fuel tanks veer off in a Y-shaped formation following the explosion.
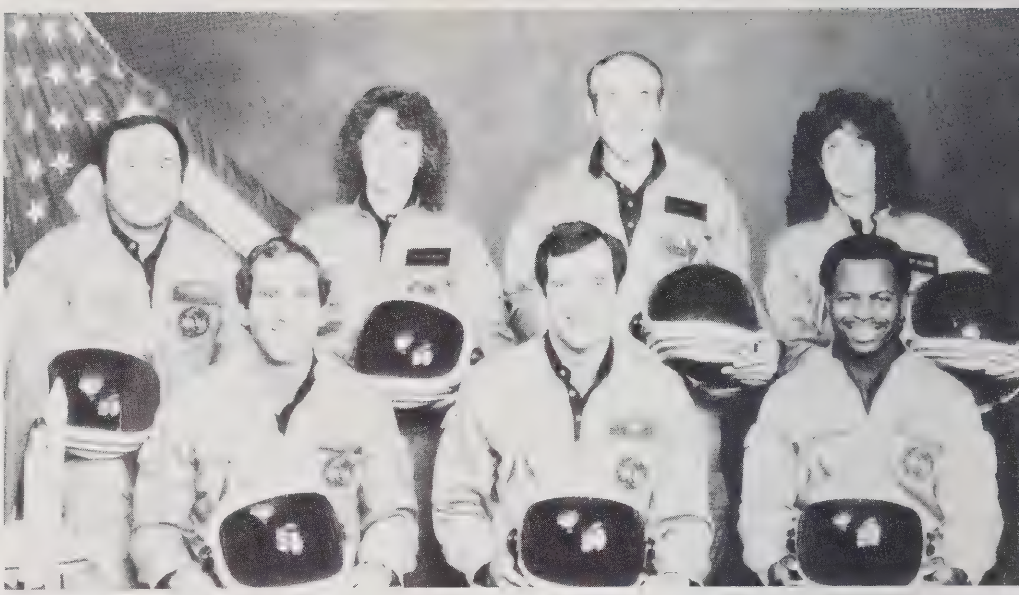
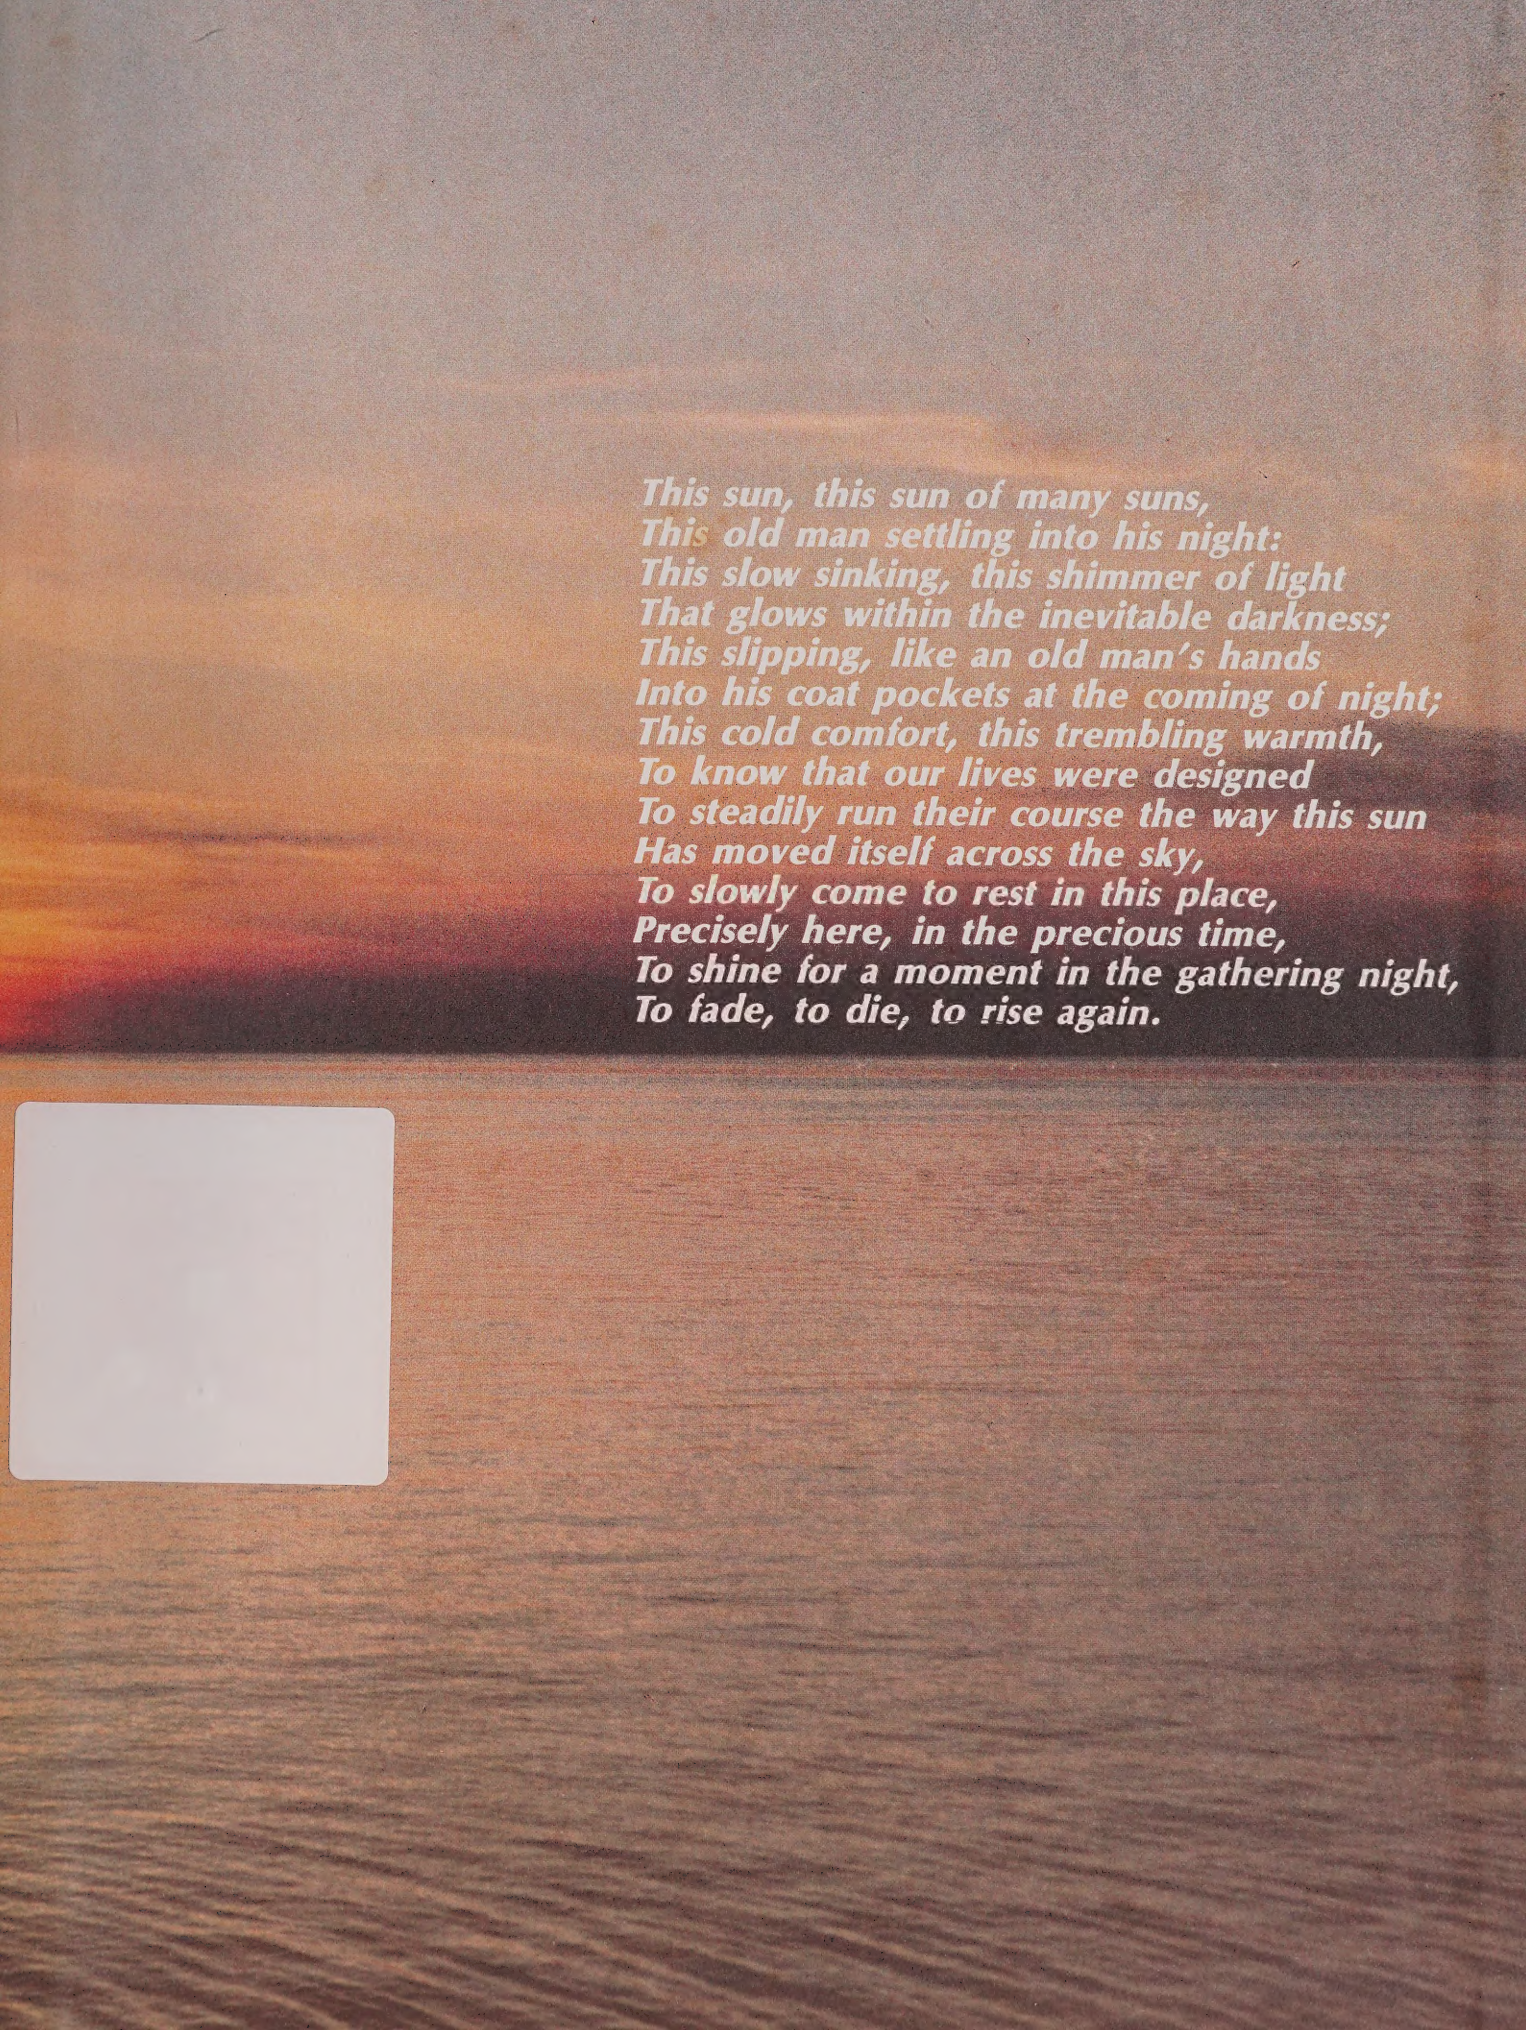
Bottom Right: Headlines were dominated by news of the tragedy for days.





This sun, this sun of many suns,
This old man settling into his night:
This slow sinking, this shimmer of light
That glows within the inevitable darkness;
This slipping, like an old man's hands
Into his coat pockets at the coming of night;
This cold comfort, this trembling warmth,
To know that our lives were designed
To steadily run their course the way this sun
Has moved itself across the sky,
To slowly come to rest in this place,
Precisely here, in the precious time,
To shine for a moment in the gathering night,
To fade, to die, to rise again.
